As the world moves into 1950 it crosses over into the second half of the twentieth century. For the University of Omaha mid-century brought an era of expansion and a prediction of growth in the next 50 years.

Paralleling the first half of the century which saw the founding and development of the university, the second half of the century gives promise of a growing campus, a growing faculty, a growing student body and a growing reputation.

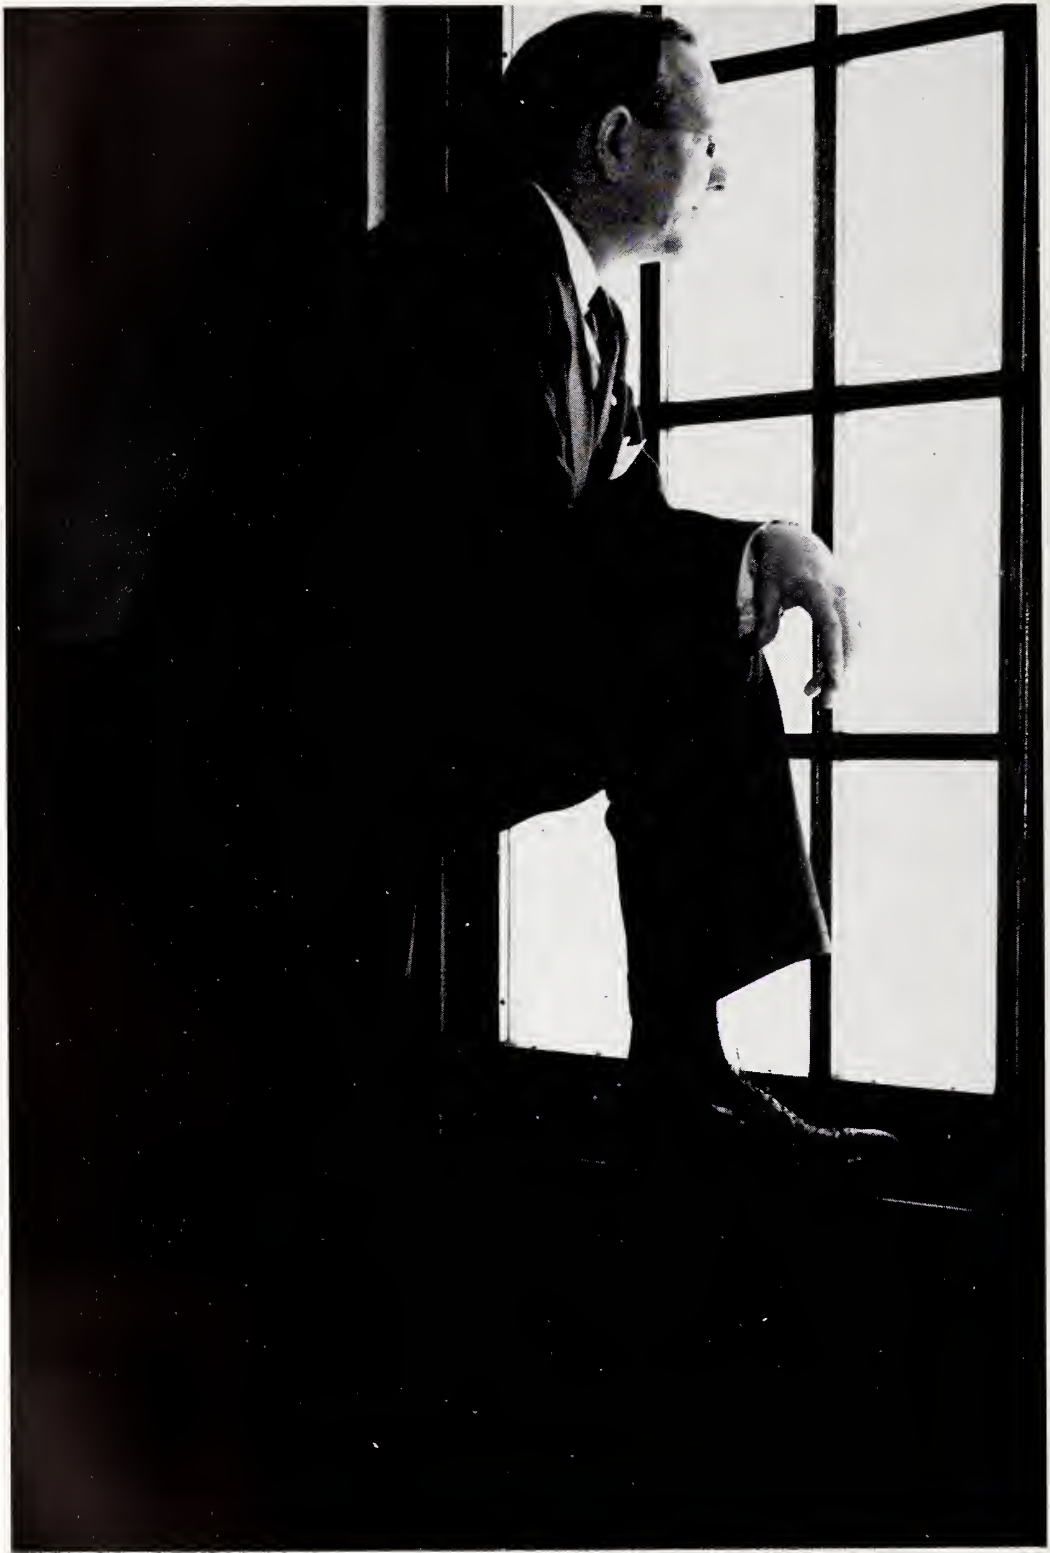

A Dream Come True

Dreamed of for years, planned since 1946, the Fieldhouse and Stadium were put into use at mid-century. Two gala celebrations marked the openings of first, the Stadium, and then the Fieldhouse.

On October 1, 1949, 4,000 fans thronged into the Stadium for the first varsity football game ever to be played on the Omaha University campus. The Creighton basketball game on February 23, 1950 gave students their first chance to visit inside their "home on the hill."

With the 10-year building program dream partially translated into reality, Omaha University supporters look to the second half of the century for its fulfillment.

University President MILO BAIL leads the way into the future

Innovations keynote his second year

University President Milo Bail continued during his second year at Omaha U to win new friends by his energetic leadership.

Under him, the Fieldhouse and Stadium were brought to completion. Plans for greater university expansion also went ahead. A faculty committee began studying the problem of a library building. The Student Council set out to determine the facilities needed in a proposed Student Union.

Through his guidance university-sponsored occasions such as Homecoming, Founders' Day, Vocations Day, and the Football Banquet were bigger than ever before. Establishing an Achievement Day, providing the band with uniforms, a university television program, a sorority going national, the initiation of a summer commencement and the establishment of the Alumni Association on an independent basis were other signs of progress during his second year.

Two Sources of Guidance

President Emeritus Haynes

President Emeritus Rowland Haynes' influence continued to be felt on the university campus. During his years as university president, the present expansion program was developed. Because of his leadership, the university enters the second half of the century as a growing institution. The Board of Regents

The Board of Regents

Another factor in the university's steady progress is the Board of Regents. Established in January, 1931, this body has set the policy of the university during its period of greatest growth.

In the past year, the Regents have seen the laying of the Fieldhouse cornerstone, the opening of the Stadium and the formal dedication of the Fieldhouse. This brings to a close one project and opens the way for others.

Leading the Board in its preparations for the future is President Farrar Newberry. Herbert Marshall is the vice president and George C. Pardee is the secretary.

Alumni Association

The University of Omaha Alumni Association rounds the midcentury post with an expanding program of its own. For the first time in its history, the organization has a full-time executive secretary.

He is A. Dale Agee, a '48 grad of Omaha University. Agee replaced former part-time secretary Joan Sorenson, also an Omaha U graduate, in December.

With an active membership of 600 former students, the Association is serving both the students and the university. Typical of its cooperation is the interest it has taken in planning for the Student Union and the Harry F. Fore library memorial.

Highlight of the Association's social activities was its annual Auld Lang Syne Dance in February. University seniors were guests at the affair, which was held at the Birchwood Club. Also in the spotlight was the "Fieldhouse Frolic," a gala picnic held in the new athletic plant in March.

President of the Alumni Association is Bob Turner. Miss Henrietta Kieser is vice president; Mrs. Jessie T. Jones, secretary; and John Knudsen, treasurer. Serving on the Board of Directors are Dorothy Edwards, George Pardee, Dr. W. H. Thompson, Herbert Story, Miss Kieser and Turner.

Adult Education Serves the Community

The School of Adult Education continued into 1950 its pattern of community service by inaugurating two new programs.

Guided by its director, E. M. Hosman, the school set in motion a training program for soldiers of the Strategic Air Command. In cooperation with the Omaha Police Department, it established a school for policemen.

Meanwhile, other activities gained in popularity. The Dime Book Review experienced its most successful season. Two clubs, Town and Gown and Open Forum, entered their eleventh and twelfth years of operation.

The School of Adult Education also sponsored many conferences at the university. Such meetings as the Midwest Book Reviewers Conference and the Family Life Institute brought outstanding professional leaders to Omaha.

OU's famed church usher course spread in use. Under the supervision of Omaha University, three other schools adopted the plan.

A total of nearly 2,500 people were enrolled in evening courses during 1949-50. Almost a thousand others made use of the provisions for study by correspondence. Thus the School of Adult Education furthered its goal of service to Omahans.

One unusual course in the SAE was the Police School. Here shown discussing it are Police Chief Fred Franks, Dr. Bail, Major Leo Hayes, Police Commissioner W. W. Carmichael and E. M. Hosman, director of Adult Education.

received the new title of finance secretary and vice president in charge of business management. William T. Utley was named head of the Department of History and Government. Dr. Nell Ward became head of the Chemistry Department. Ormsby Harry, formerly an assistant dean of students, was named an associate. Two men were given full professorships. They are Dr. W. C. Henry, English, and E. M. Hosman, education. Two others, Dr. Russell Derbyshire and William Durand, were made assistant professors.

Highlight of faculty activities during the year was the second annual Faculty Lecture Series. Under the chairmanship of Dr. Ralph Wardle, five talks were presented in the faculty clubroom. Speakers were Dr. Wilfred Payne, J. G. McMillan, J. Lee Westrate, Hurford Davison and Dr. Frank Gorman.

The Faculty Luncheon was a newcomer to the campus this year. Originated by Dr. Payne, a group of 16 professors met weekly for discussion sessions. Such varied topics as the city manager plan, the effect of John Dewey on education, existentialism, and Toynbee's "Study of History" found places in the conversation.

The Faculty: A Record of Growth

OU's faculty enters the second half of the century as a growing one. In the last five years the number of day-school professors has increased from 41 to 80.

Eight faculty promotions were announced during the 1949-'50 school year. Charles Hoff re-

The Passing of a Teacher and a Friend

One of Omaha University's best-liked professors died December 20, 1949. He was Harry F. Fore, age 71.

For 12 years Mr. Fore taught English and creative writing courses at the University. In August, 1948 he retired but continued as an instructor in the School of Adult Education. While at the University, he became known for both his teaching ability and his great friendliness toward others.

Mr. Fore was graduated from Missouri University in 1904. Previous to his work here, he taught at the Universities of Purdue and Creighton and at Missouri State College. Formerly a newspaperman, he was a member of the Omaha Writers Guild.

During his years at Omaha University, Mr. Fore gave more than 300 books to the library. It seems only natural that, upon his death, a Harry F. Fore Library Memorial Committee should be organized. Dr. Ralph Wardle, head of the English Department, served as its chairman.

Plans were made for a browsing room to be located in or near the present library. When the proposed Library is built a special room will be set aside as a memorial to Mr. Fore. It will be supplied with non-specialized books and will be in a general reading room.

Faculty Committees

Teaching isn't the only thing the faculty does. Besides their other duties, the professors have committee assignments. A total of 17 standing committees served during the 1949-50 school year.

Included in this number were committees on honors and degrees with distinction, the library, scholarships and student publications. Other groups of special interest to students are the Athletic Committee, the Committee on Student Activities and the Committee on Student Assemblies.

Dr. Frank Gorman was chairman of the athletic group. Other members were Roderic Crane, Hurford Davison, Charles Hoff and Virg Yelkin.

The Faculty Committee on Student Activities was under the chairmanship of John W. Lucas. Four students served on the committee. Faculty members were Charles Hoff, Harry Rice, Virg Yelkin, George Pritchard, J. D. Tyson, R. L. Mossholder, Mrs. Mildred Gearhart, Mrs. Mary Padou Young, V. J. Kennedy and Mrs. Betty Staskewitz.

Supervising and selecting convocations was the task of the Faculty Committee on Student Assemblies. William T. Utley served as chairman. Other faculty members were Martin Bush, J. D. Tyson, Ormsby Harry, Mrs. Frances Key and Don Pflasterer. Again, four students were included in the committee membership.

Who hasn't been to the Dean of Students' office?

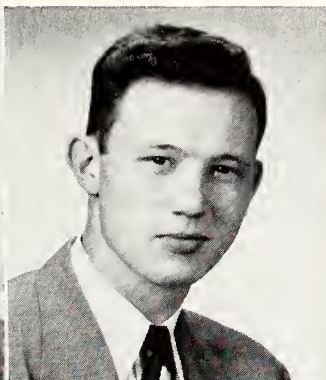

To get petitions, to discuss down slips, to change programs, to get posters and plans okayed. Students label it red tape, but it's what enables the Deans office to serve as a combination information desk and coordinating center for all campus activities.

Three loves had she

The Gateway, the Gammas and the debate squad. That sums up Lois Brady for 8 activity-packed semesters. She translates happiness as a diet of bacon and tomato sandwiches strawberry sodas and a Yellowstone moon. She was one of the few women to attain the title of "Madame Editor," but she's willing to exchange it in June for "Mrs."

What would life at OU be like without lines? .

And here's one of the most popular of all of them—the lunch line. The University of Omaha can take pride in the knowledge that students will probably remember its lines longer than those of Shakespeare.

With printer's ink in his veins

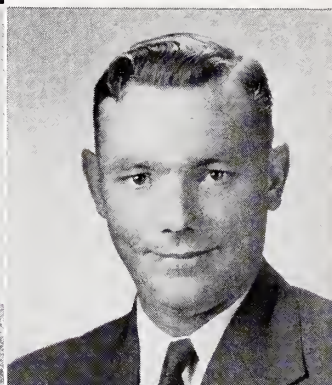

Al Pascale, Chief to Gateway staffers, knows the news business from headline to deadline. Ever ready with a punch line or a hearty laugh, Al took lipstick on the earpiece of his phone, scraps of torn paper in his desk, and special delivery envelopes filled with water, yet managed to come up smiling with a few practical jokes of his own and his cheerful disposition still intact.

"Is the Gateway out yet?"

is a familiar question every Tuesday and Friday, publication days for the student newspaper. The staff, here shown "putting the paper to bed" on deadline night, had among its 30 members harmonica players, jugglers, soft-shoe dancers, black-board cartoonists, and a few normal people.

All-round girl Eileen Wolfe loves life and gets the most out of it. Despite a long list of responsible positions, Eileen finds lots of time for fun. She loves debating and frankly admits she gets farther with a male team for opposition, especially when there's a male judge. Her dreams are of Yellowstone Park and men who smoke pipes.

Aim: To find out why I spent four years at O. U.

Straight A's every time for Marion Heiser. . .

Her scholastic achievements, however, never require all her time. She loves dancing or hiking in Fontenelle Forest. Since she likes books it's logical enough to find her working part-time in the library, but she has no patience with students who don't put plus signs on call slips for oversize books.

Buses could win an election for the most popular gripe at OU. The way they always get you there 2 minutes late for your 8 o'clock class, the way they break down comes the first snow, the way it's always a 72nd instead of a 60th on the coldest, windiest morning — the list is endless. But the bus-radios play nice songs.

Some people have them, some people don't.

But those that don't usually manage to find friends that do. The sought after item—lockers. If you're the friendly, hospitable sort that ended up with nine or ten locker mates, why not try throwing a party?

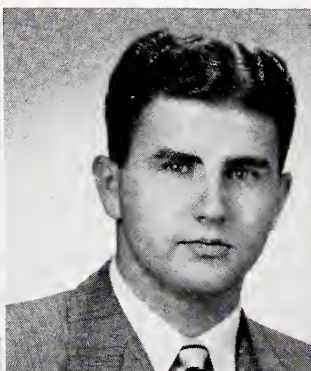

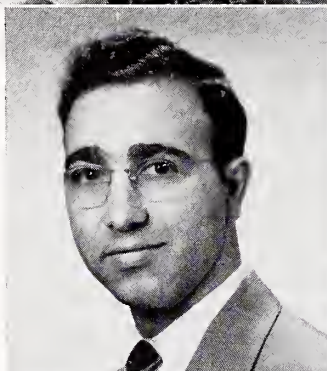

A busy gal was Pat Hasch

when she found herself president of her sorority and secretary of the Student Council at the same time. She still wonders if there was anything deliberate in the fact that one of her big jobs while on the council was blowing up balloons. Her likes: rare steaks and tall men; her pride: bowling score 195; her aim: see America.

The business office handles the finances . . .

of the university. Everything from registration fees to refund slips is within its realm. Under the direction of Finance Secretary Charles Hoff and his staff, the office makes out payrolls for all non-faculty workers, does the university's purchasing, and keeps accounting records as some of its main functions.

Most Eligible Bachelor, according to the Greeks, is Jim Tagney who sighs and says he won't worry about a home and fireside until after he's found that one job that's cut out for him. He gets a big kick out of spending his money foolishly but thinks he'll probably settle down in about five years with some little brunette who is worldly but not sophisticated.

Originator of popular campus phrases . . .

and good practical jokes was Sherry Selders. She spent most of her time arranging Tomahawk picture appointments for seniors, wondering if she'd get her soc project finished in time to graduate, gaining fame for her clever comebacks and leaving people with the conviction that "nobody can tell a story like Sherry."

J U N I O R S

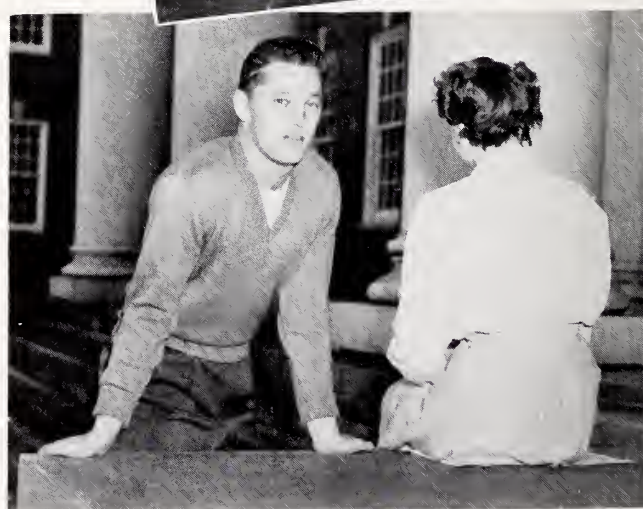

1949-1950 went down as a big year for the junior class at the University of Omaha. With graduation only a year away, the class of '51 busied themselves in campus activities of every sort.

Juniors held officerships in many sororities, fraternities and other organizations. Jim Borland was head cheerleader. Gene Step and Ralph Selby made up an all-junior team on the varsity debate squad. Athletics, music and student publications found juniors especially active.

President of the class was Jerry Leffler. Don Fitch filled the vice president's chair, and Jim Borland was secretary-treasurer. On the Student Council, juniors were represented by Jackie Geilus, Sally Step, Bill Sykora and Tom Townsend.

The big social event of the year for the class of '51 was the Junior Prom in April. The dance was held at Peony Park. During intermission, a member of the class was revealed as the 1950 Junior Prom Queen.

Judging from their last three years of activity, next year's seniors will share a large part in building for the future of the university.

S O P H O M O R E S

The class of '52 was one of the busiest in the history of the university during the 1949-1950 school year.

The sophomores were successful in mixing studies with honors. A member of the class walked off with first place in the Tomahawk Beauty contest. She was blonde, blue-eyed Barbara Haugness. From the sophomore class came officers of many social, honorary and special interest organizations. Sophomores was represented on athletic teams, student publications, the cheerleading squad, the debate squad and dramatics.

Lynn Hooton, president

Joan Bugbee, vice president

Gloria Johnson, secretary-treasurer

Football letterman Lynn Hooton held the class president's gavel for the year. He was aided by Vice President Joan Bugbee and Secretary-treasurer Gloria Johnson. Sophomores on the Student Council were Mark Gautier, Nancy Jones, Ben Tobias and June Williams. Tobias and Gautier were vice president and treasurer of the council, respectively.

On December 16, the class presented the university's first annual Sophomore Cotillion. Eddy Haddad and his orchestra played for the semi-formal dance at Peony Park. Decorations, in tune with the Christmas spirit, followed a pink and white color scheme.

With two years of college behind them, the sophomore class shows qualities of campus leadership in prospect for the next two years.

Newcomers to the University of Omaha in the fall of 1949 got off to a big start in their college careers.

President Milo Bail started the activities rolling when he set aside September 30 as Freshman Day. Highlight of the celebration was the annual Freshman Mixer, held in the auditorium. Gary Peniston's six-man combo, composed entirely of freshman musicians, provided the music for dancing. During the Mixer, the frosh elected their Typical Freshman Boy and Girl. The honors went to Ken Kremers and Bonnie Bernhard.

Typical freshmen: Bonnie Bernhard, Ken Kremers

In the October elections, Ken Kremers was elected president of the class of '53. The vice president's position went to Howard Olson. Ruthann Irvin was chosen to keep the secretary-treasurer's books. Freshman representatives on the Student Council are Marilyn Cowger, Joanne Larkin, Ray Hampton and Jim Townsend.

In February the Student Council's annual Tea-Dance in the auditorium honored the second semester Freshmen. Once again, Gary Peniston and his crew furnished the musical background.

The freshmen of '50 will have an opportunity to take a leading part in the growth and development of the university.

Vocations Day

March 15 was income tax day for most American citizens this year, but for OU students it was Vocations Day.

Originated in 1949, Vocations Day in 1950 proved that it has become one of the big events of the year. The annual affair is intended to give students professional information concerning vocations.

This year the day started off with an address by Harold F. North, an industrial relations man from Chicago. North spoke in the Fieldhouse at 8:30 a.m. Following his talk, students attended seminars on individual vocations. More than 35 seminars were held.

These meetings were presided over by Omaha business and professional men. Students got a chance to hear about actual working conditions, salaries, training needed and job opportunities. Question periods were included in each session.

Eileen Wolfe, last year's vice chairman, was chairman for the day. Serving as her righthand man was Vice Chairman Eugene Step. John Woods, director of the Veterans and Placement Bureau, acted as over-all faculty chairman.

Nineteen hundred and fifty brought several additions to Omaha U's fast-growing Vocations Day. In the new Fieldhouse, Omaha business firms sponsored vocational exhibits which attracted the attention, not only of students, but of the general public. Starting with some 40 exhibits, the show eventually presented 60, as other firms asked to be represented.

Another innovation found the World-Herald publishing a special Vocations Day issue. The front page for March 15 was devoted to information relating to the day. Al Pascale, former Gateway editor-in-chief, wrote copy for the issue.

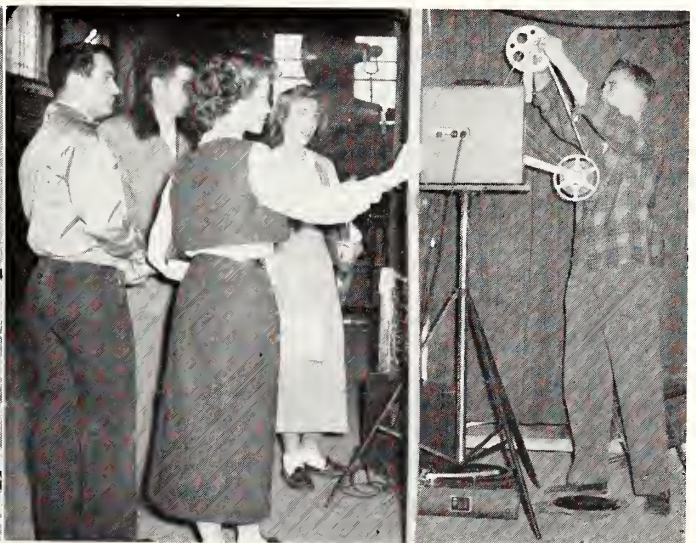

Still another 1950 addition was the invitation issued to high school seniors. An estimated 3,000 preppers attended the university in the afternoon. They heard a special talk by North and several panel discussions on vocations. They also saw the exhibits.

Student Services

THE VETERANS ADMINISTRATION provides a familiar office in the west wing of the first floor for ex-G.I.'s at the university. With James L. Irwin as chief, the V. A. makes testing and counseling services available to students attending school under the G. I. Bill of Rights. Above, Glenn Lewis, left, vocational counselor for the office, discusses a student's problems with Mr. Irwin.

THE STUDENT HEALTH OFFICE in room 250 is probably well-known to every student at OU. Once a semester students come to this office to have their activity cards validated. And all during the semester, the office is ready to supply students with first aid and any other needed remedies for their assorted aches and pains. Dr. Maine C. Anderson is director of the service, and the office is run by Miss Beldora Tacke, a registered nurse. She is pictured here showing some of her equipment to two students.

THE BUREAU OF ADULT TESTING AND GUIDANCE takes responsibility for testing all new students. Staffed by psychologists, psychometrists and counselors, the office also provides continuous service for all individual students. Here, Kenneth Bush, Robert Moriarty and Alec Phillips look over one of their reports.

THE GUIDANCE AND PLACEMENT OFFICE handles all student employment on the campus. Vocational advice and aid in securing outside jobs are other services provided by the office. Mrs. Thelma Engle, secretary for the office, is shown here helping a student.

They Make an Education Easier

THE LIBRARY boasts a collection of more than 76,000 books, plus 15,000 government documents. It provides study space for 200 students. A reserve system makes it possible for many students to share copies of books which are in great demand. The library employs students to serve as attendants at the desk.

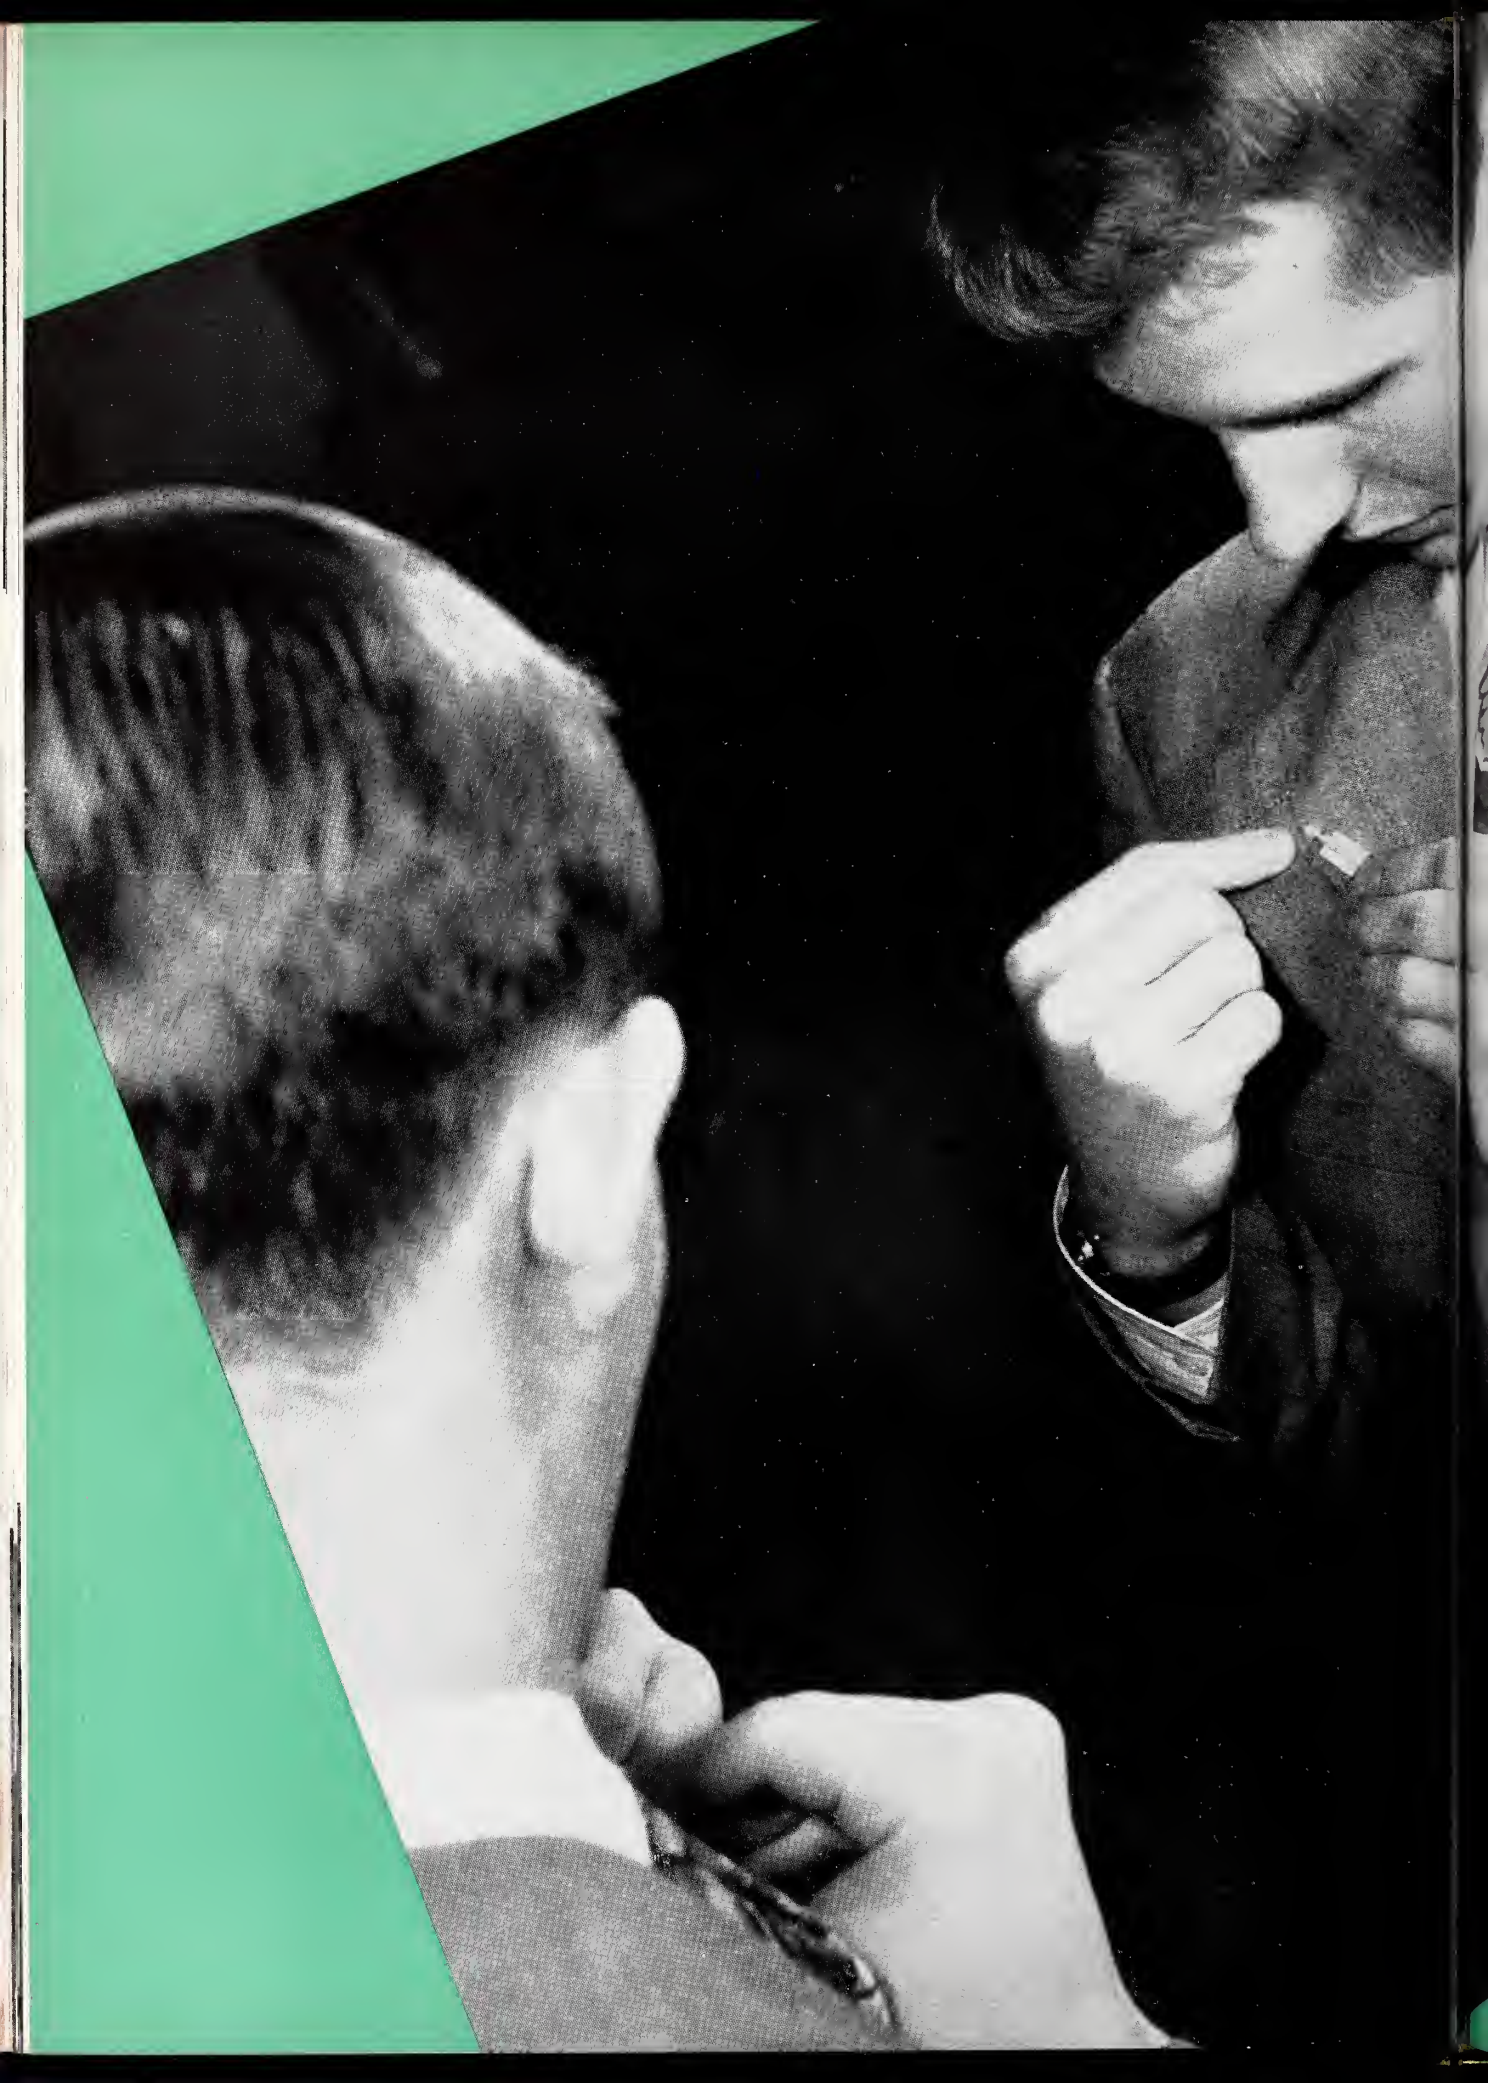

THE SUPERVISED STUDY CENTER is in operation the year around, with classes from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. It provides an opportunity for individual classwork, and permits students to make up high school credits or to take college credits if they have been unable to register in the day school class. The average time required for earning three college credits is three weeks. Above, Mrs. Genevieve Woods, director of the center, aids a student.

THE BUREAU OF FACULTY TEACHING AIDS is the source of all mimeographed directions, announcements and (ahem) examinations. But better things originate in this office too. Through its audio-visual division come all the films which are shown at the university. Miss Betty Gayer is director of the bureau.

THE READING IMPROVEMENT CLINIC located on the second floor, provides an increasingly important service to students. The ability to read rapidly is becoming a necessity in modern life. In this laboratory, students are trained by scientific methods to increase their reading speed. Above, Miss Francis Wood, supervisor, is shown working with a student.

Corinthian Society

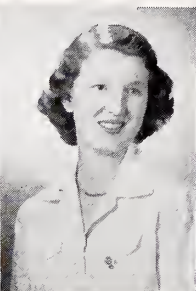

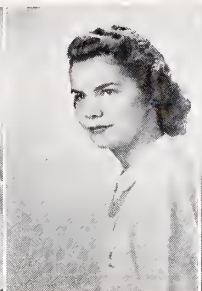

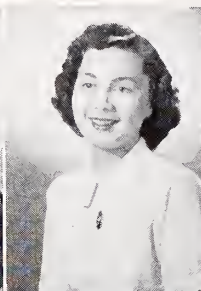

The Corinthian society offers recognition for high scholarships. It came into being at the Honors Convocation in the spring of 1948. Founded by Dr. Ralph M. Wardle, it is named for the corinthian columns at the entrance of the school.

To be elected to membership, a student must have been on the Deans' Honor Roll for four semesters. The organization meets several times during the year, for initiation of new members and for discussion with guest speakers. This year's speakers were Mr. J. G. McMillan, assistant professor of physics, who discussed "Oak Ridge and the Atom Bomb," and Mr. Hurford H. Davison, director of the department of retailing, whose topic was "Retailing and Modern Business."

Alpha Lambda Delta

Alpha Lambda Delta, national scholastic honorary sorority for freshman women, held its fall tea for prospective members on Oct. 25 in the faculty clubroom.

Those invited were honor students from high schools. The purpose of the organization is to promote high scholarship among women at the university. Membership requirement is a 3.5 average made during the freshman year.

President of the group is Suzanne Nelson. Other officers are Mary Gardner, vice president; Doris Hanson, secretary; Pat Doyle, treasurer; Ann Weinhardt, historian; Sally Step, junior advisor and Shirley Alberti, senior advisor.

The organization's sponsors are Miss Gertrude Kincaide and Mrs. Mary Padou Young. Dr. Nell Ward, head of the Chemistry Department is an honorary member.

On December 6, installation ceremonies were held for Judith Swafford, Dorothy Townsend and Ann Weinhardt who qualified for membership after last year's second semester.

On March 8, twelve freshman women, the largest group to be eligible for membership since the group was chartered three years ago, were pledged. The pledges were: Celia Cowger, Sonya Lewis, Jean Sabatka, Ann Williams, Patricia Boukal, Elaine Brailey, Joan Clapper, Marilyn Cowger, Mary Lee Houghton, Bonnie Kundel, Marbeth Negethon, and Dixie Clark. They were formally initiated in the spring.

Phi Eta Sigma

Phi Eta Sigma is a national honor fraternity for freshmen men. It was founded on the campus of the University of Illinois in 1923 by men who were interested in promoting scholarship in others as well as achieving high scholarship themselves.

The University of Omaha chapter of Phi Eta Sigma was installed on this campus March 1, 1948. It had grown from a local organization of the same ideals which had functioned on the campus for about a year before affiliating with the national fraternity.

At present, the Omaha chapter of Phi Eta Sigma has 40 active members, including six honorary brothers. In order to pledge Phi Eta Sigma, a man must achieve a 3.5 average during his freshman year.

Since it is an honorary and not a social organization, Phi Eta Sigma limits its activities. There is a Smoker held for all freshmen likely to be eligible for the organization and also an initiation ceremony and banquet for men who are accepted into the fraternity. One important function of the fraternity is the distribution of "How to Study" pamphlets at the Freshman Convocation each fall.

George Marling is president of the fraternity; Mark Gautier, vice-president; Berkley Forsythe, secretary; and John Baldwin, treasurer.

This year Dr. William H. Thompson, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, was accepted as an honorary member of the group. Ten other men were also initiated, including George Randol, Bob Greenwell, Herbert Sklenar, Paul Saltzman, Donald Hansen, Delmar Hansen, Richard Carlson, Jim Townsend, William Schnobrich and Robert Vavra.

Besides Dean Thompson, the honorary members of Phi Eta Sigma include President Emeritus Rowland D. Haynes, President Milo Bail, Dean Carl W. Helmstater, Dean of Students John W. Lucas and Sponsor J. D. Tyson.

Waokiya Society

This mid-century year marks the founding of Waokiya, honorary leadership society for University women. Waokiya is the Indian term for "one who commands."

The society, by gathering of the most representative women in all phases of college life, attempts to recognize and promote a high standard of efficiency in collegiate activities and thus bring together faculty and student body on a basis of mutual interest, understanding and helpfulness.

To be elected to membership, candidates must have completed five semesters of college work and during this time must have amassed a minimum of forty activity points in the following fields:

1. Scholarship
2. Social and Religious Affairs
3. Athletics
4. Publications
5. Speech, Music and Dramatic Arts

An initiation tea was held April 27 in the University clubroom and official recognition of the organization occurred on Senior Day, May 18.

Officers for the coming year will be Sally Step, president; Eda Ree Hass, vice-president; Mrs. Mildred M. Gearhart, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Mary Padou Young, faculty sponsor. Additional faculty members are Miss Nell Ward and Miss Gertrude Kincaide.

 Harry, Metheny, Fear, Townsend, Mr. Lucas.

Arrowhead Society

The Arrowhead Society was formed in late April of 1949. A group of ten students met April 20 to discuss the organization of a senior men's leadership honorary society. They decided to organize and elected Ed Kaiser as temporary chairman.

April 26, the name and constitution were officially adopted and the organization became officially established.

The constitution set rigid requirements for membership. A student must have an activities major consisting of 20 points and a minor of 15 points. Second semester juniors are required to have at least 40 points, seniors 50 points. Points are earned in five fields—scholarship, athletics, social and religious affairs, publications, and speech, music and the dramatic arts.

Any prospective member must rank in the upper 35 per cent of his class. Members are tapped into the organization on Senior Day and during the fall semester. During the fall of '49, members were tapped on Leadership Day, an affair which the group hopes will become annual. This year, Frederick T. Bucholz, president of the Omaha Steel Works, was the featured speaker. About 65 attended the dinner and participated in discussion groups which followed in separate rooms.

President of the organization is Lloyd Metheny. Bill Fear is vice president, Ormsby L. Harry is secretary-treasurer and Dean John W. Lucas is faculty advisor. Other faculty members are Harry Rice, Wayne Wilson and Paul Crossman. President Milo Bail is an honorary member.

Kappa Mu Lambda

Kappa Mu Lambda, honorary music fraternity, includes student who have completed at least one year of college music with sufficiently high grades. It meets twice a month, one of these a dinner and discussion meeting. The club offers a chance for understanding fellowship and also brings music to the university through it's activities.

This was a year of many new undertakings for the reactivated society. The group gave spring and fall receptions for new members, ushered at the Omaha Symphony concerts and helped in ticket sales. They also presented gifts to Rosemary Howell and Myron Cohen, symphony soloists. A music convocation commemorating National Music Week was held in the spring with all members participating.

The officers working in harmony: Klima, Nelson, Fitzsimmons, Lindborg, Hayes

Officers for the year were: Bill Fitzsimmons, president; Dorothy Hays, vice-president; Sears Nelson, secretary; Ed Klima, treasurer; Nancy Lindborg, historian; Mr. V. J. Kennedy, faculty sponsor; Mr. Martin Bush and Mr. Richard Duncan, patrons.

Alpha Psi Omega

Lambda Chi Cast

In the spring of 1949 the Lambda Chi Cast of Alpha Psi Omega, honorary dramatics fraternity was chartered at the University of Omaha. The group then became a member of the largest national college organization in any departmental field in the American University system. There are chapters in 230 colleges with a membership of more than 14,000.

Membership in the Lambda Chi Cast is extended to dramatics students who have earned a specified number of points by participation in dramatic productions and in stagecraft and workshop capacities.

This year the activities have included initiation of new members and pledging ceremony, a banquet, play reading and attendance in a group at outstanding entertainments which came to Omaha.

Cast director is Douglas White. Dean Swanson is stage manager, and Harry Langdon is business manager.

Mrs. Frances Key sponsors the group.

Future Teachers of America

This year marks the return of Sigma Pi Phi chapter of Future Teachers of America to the University of Omaha campus. Discontinued during the war, Sigma Pi Phi, honorary educational fraternity, offers the future teacher a membership not only in the college organization but the state and national organizations as well.

It endeavors to further the interest of students and the public in the field of education. The chapter has over fifty members, putting it on the national honor roll. A student need not be majoring in education to belong to the organization. The membership is open to any person interested in education or the educational field.

The club's activities include dinner meetings with speakers from the educational field, and the annual spring tea for incoming students interested in the teaching profession.

Officers for this year were: John Bryan, president; Gayle Eustice, vice president; Doris Buffett, secretary; Dorothy Gorman, treasurer; Dixie Lee Clark, project chairman; Lucia Grove, librarian; Dr. Frank H. Gorman, Miss Frances Holliday, Dr. Leslie O. Taylor, Miss Frances Wood, faculty sponsors.

Sigma Tau Delta

The Kappa Gamma chapter of Sigma Tau Delta, national honorary English fraternity, is composed of members interested in the study of literature and in creative writing. It holds informal discussion meetings every month.

The first regular meeting of the year was held at the home of Dr. Ralph M. Wardle, group sponsor. At this meeting they gave an impromptu reading of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." At the December meeting the group discussed the recent play, "Death of a Salesman," by Arthur Miller.

At a creative writing session in January, members read original compositions. Several of these were submitted to The Rectangle, national publication of the fraternity.

On the agenda for the remainder of the year were discussions of "The Ox-Bow Incident," by Walter Van Tilburg Clark and "Strange Interlude," by Eugene O'Neill. An annual picnic held in May climaxes activities for the year.

Officers for the year were: Charles Foucek, first semester president; Marion Heiser, second semester president; Pauline Noodell, secretary; Andriana Adams, treasurer; Dr. Ralph M. Wardle, faculty sponsor.

Student Council

Increased activities were on the agenda of the Student Council as the result of a growing university. All-school dances, all-school drives, new organizations, and various other student functions all came under the administration of the council.

The Freshman Day and tea dance mixer opened the council-sponsored social functions for the school year. This was followed by Homecoming festivities, the second tea dance held in February, and with Ma-ie Day as the finale.

To help unify the individual classes, the council changed the annual Christmas Dance to the Sophomore Cotillion and the Spring Dance to the Junior Prom. Class officers and council representatives of the class collaborated on plans.

Council officers: Gautier, Tobias, Metheny, Geilus.

In addition to the normal routine, the council coped with the question of whether card playing should be returned to campus. After weeks of research and discussion it was voted down. The group also made suggestions for the Student Union and the improvement of the cafeteria line situation. For the first time in university history, a University Dad, Lewis A. Townsend, was chosen by the Student Council for the Dads' Day football game.

Under the direction of Eileen Wolfe and the slogan "Don't Pass the Buck—Give it," the council sponsored the annual Campus Chest Drive. They collected over $800, doubling the amount collected last year.

Officers for the year were Lloyd Metheny, president; Ben Tobias, vice president; Jacqueline Geilus, secretary; and Mark Gautier, treasurer. Other members of the Council include seniors Dick Johnson, Jean Satrapa, and Eileen Wolfe; juniors Sally Step, Bill Sykora, and Tom Townsend; sophomores Nancy Jones and June Williams; and freshmen Marilyn Cowger, Ray Hampton, Joanne Larkin, and Jim Townsend.

President Bail delivers President's Convocation address

At Convocations

The student who attended every convocation during the 1949-50 school year had his hands full. Annual convocations and special programs filled the schedule.

On October 7 the university celebrated its forty-first birthday with a Founders' Day Convocation in the auditorium. Dr. Henry G. Harmon, president of Drake University, delivered the address. The Alumni Association presented the university with the first pennant ever used by Omaha U.

The annual President's Convocation was held February 10. In his talk, Dr. Milo Bail challenged faculty and students "to work for the joy of it." Other annual convocations included those given at Christmas and Easter.

Special convocations presented both movies and guest speakers. Among the films shown were "Laura," "Margie," "The Razor's Edge," "Jane Eyre" and "Dragonwyck." Convocation speakers included Louis Bromfield, novelist; Hedley Hepworth, impersonator of Dickens' characters; Dr. George Davis, expert on James Whitcomb Riley, and Boris Goldovski, famed music critic. In February the band performed in a concert convocation.

At Lectures

Lectures, too, brought top speakers to the University of Omaha.

On November 3 and 4, the eighth annual Baxter Lectures were presented. The Honorable Ralph Edward Flanders, United States senator from Vermont, spoke on "War, Welfare and Freedom." These annual addresses by outstanding personalities are made possible by a gift from the late Mrs. Katherine Baxter in memory of her husband, William.

During the fall of 1949 the fourth annual Institute on Foreign Affairs was held at the university. Directed by William T. Utley, the Institute featured seven speakers on the theme, "The Quest for Peace." Among the lecturers were Gordon Mattison, State Department expert on the Near East; Dr. Joseph Dunner, Grinnell College political science head; Dr. Owen Lattimore, director of the School of International Relations at Johns Hopkins, and Dr. Jan Papanek, former Czechoslovakian delegate to the United Nations.

Several other lectures were also sponsored by the School of Adult Education. These included those given at the Town and Gown Club and the World Trade Institute.

We Talked . . .

On Radio and TV . . .

Omaha University was well-aired over the radio and television during 1949-50.

The university was the subject of a weekly Monday night broadcast over station KOIL. The series of programs included features on Founders' Day, athletics, Homecoming, the Christmas Workshop and the Baxter Lectures. Interviews with new faculty members, a talk by Dr. Bail and a concert by the band were other highlights.

On March 7, students got a chance to take to the airwaves. More than 30 speech and journalism majors gained valuable experience by participating in OU's third annual KBON Day. They wrote copy, announced newscasts and emceed disc jockey shows for the station.

Two student-produced radio dramas were presented. Tom Townsend served as student coordinator.

Omaha U also had a program over KSWI, Council Bluffs. Every other week Art Westergard, a former student, reviewed the news of the university, as taken from The Gateway. Plans were being made to begin a series of dramatic productions over KOWH.

At Coffee Hours

The Coffee Hour became a popular feature at the University of Omaha in 1949-50. The hour-long discussion sessions plus coffee were held on Wednesday afternoons in the faculty clubroom.

Student panels usually led the discussions, but sometimes there were guest speakers. One of the most important of these was Arthur Skeffington, labor member of the British Parliament. Skeffington spoke on the effects of the Labor Government in Britain.

Coffee Hours had a wide range of other topics, too. During the year students argued about such subjects as card playing, student thinking, church doctrine and religious conviction, psychological testing and economist John Keynes. Faculty sponsor of the series was Dr. Wilfred Payne. Sally Step was Coffee Hour chairman.

Gateway

With an accent on keeping readers happy, the Gateway staff devoted all its efforts to readability and to giving student news precedence over forums, institutes and panel discussions.

W. Wilson Cliff acted as the Gateway's sponsor and instructor when second semester the paper became an accredited course in the College of Applied Arts.

First semester staff:

Tomahawk

The Tomahawk staff set out in September to put out the best yearbook in OU's history. Working from the angle that more pictures and less copy means a better Tomahawk, Photographer Leigh Watson shouldered the shutter snapping burden while Editor Sally Step and Associate Editor Tom Townsend grew gray trying to arrange appointments, more appointments, and still additional appointments for those that were broken.

By the time March, and the deadlines, rolled around, staff members were easily identified by their green looks, their cigarette hacks and their coffee nerves. But just for the record the staff included:

Independent Students Association

BE ON GUARD:

- Against the growth of cliques and clans among your members.
- Against the development of an "anti-greek" attitude among your members.
- Against high dues and political parties within your organization.
- Against prejudice because of race, color or religion.

These are, and always have been, the aims of the Independent Students Association. But besides this, the ISA exemplifies leadership, progressiveness and social life.

ISA members took honors throughout the year. Seven out of 11 Student Council posts were taken in the fall election. An eighth seat was filled in the spring election. Independents also took several class officer positions.

Homecoming laurels went to Eileen Wolfe, past president, who was named Princess in the all-school election.

An Independent moved up from vice chairman of Vocations Day in '49 to Chairman this year. Other members served on publicity and seminar committees.

Three key positions in Feathers, girls' pep organization, were held by ISA members.

And Independents pitched in during the Campus Chest campaign, with one of their affiliates leading the drive as chairman. The Independents were also represented in the Tom Tom Revue and "The Male Animal."

Separate club activities for the past year include a series of teas and parties. The ISA Christmas party was based on its "Operation Santa Claus," in which the organization donated five baskets of food to needy families.

In October, the ISA sent two representatives to the University of Nebraska for the annual regional convention. At this time, the Omaha chapter became a member of the Western Conference.

Officers for the first semester included Jean Satrapa, president; Cliff Boyd, vice president; June Williams, secretary, and Eileen Wolfe, treasurer.

Sponsors for the year were Dr. W. C. Henry and Don O. Nelson.

Association for the Study of Group Dynamics

A survey of Omaha recreational facilities was the 1949-50 project of the Association for the Study of Group Dynamics. The report covers free and commercialized recreation for Omaha teenagers.

During its first complete year on the university campus, A.S.G.D. continued its program of hearing speakers on various phases of social and recreational work.

For entertainment, the organization sponsored two parties. A mid-summer picnic was held at Hummel Park. Just before Christmas, the group had a swimming and dancing get-together at the Y.M.C.A.

Purposes of the organization are:

- To improve its members in the skill and knowledge of working with people.
- To provide discussion of mutual problems arising from organization for group action.
- To study the processes of group dynamics.
- To give exploratory participation in group work.
- To encourage the development of civic competence and social awareness.

Home Economics

Increased activity and interest in home economics at Omaha University has come simultaneously with the inauguration of a new four-year course and new department facilities. The Home Economics Club too is widening its scope and is endeavoring to present an active and current program to its members. The year's activities were opened with a membership picnic in Elmwood Park.

A milestone was achieved when three delegates were sent to Province IX Workshop in Oklahoma. An even greater achievement was the designation of Omaha U. as the meeting site of the workshop next fall. This will bring girls from four midwestern states to the campus.

Serving banquets in the cafeteria and a Christmas cookie sale were the mainstays of the Home Ec treasury through the year.

A demonstration on cake decoration and publication of the State College Clubs Newsletter in February was typical of the type of program that the members enjoyed.

The annual open-house and tea for high school seniors who are prospective home economics students, a mother-daughter Easter tea and installation of new officers occupied the club's activities for spring.

Officers for the 1949-50 season were Eda Ree Hass, president; Patricia Doyle, vice president; Jeanette Brown, secretary; Priscilla Park, treasurer. Serving as sponsors were Mrs. Ira Jones, Miss Margaret Killian, and Mrs. Ernestine Bottlemey.

The varied and active program is designed to interest all members and will continue to grow with the University for an enthusiastic group cannot keep its enthusiasm from spreading.

Christian Fellowship

Omaha University Christian Fellowship is an inter-denominational organization which has provided students an opportunity for Christian growth through weekly Bible studies, prayer and fellowship.

The students have enjoyed several house parties during the year, in addition to the annual Spring Banquet. Adoption of a family at Christmas was a source of much joy to the group.

As a branch of Inter-Varsity, an international organization, O. U. Fellowship is only one of many campus witnesses for Christ.

With the largest membership in their history, University Players began the year with a tea for new members in the faculty club room.

Kendrick Wilson, Community Playhouse director, was guest speaker at one of the first semester meetings of the organization. Frank Rice conducted a stagecraft class in conjunction with the players. Members of this class constructed the set for "The Male Animal."

The main purpose of the University Players is to choose and put on OU's spring and fall plays. This year's selections were "The Male Animal" and "The Corn Is Green." Many of the members had major speaking parts in the productions, others contributed by working on sets, costumes, make up, publicity and other committees.

A Christmas Party in the Pow Wow Inn, and cast parties at Dixons and Gorats helped to round out the organizations social season.

Mrs. Frances Key, faculty sponsor for the group, directed the plays, and sponsored all the activities of the Players.

Intercollegiate Debate

Leaving a trail of arguments from Minnesota to Kansas, the Varsity Debate squad covered the area by representing Omaha University in six intercollegiate contests. They always managed to win the majority of their verbal battles and brought home enviable ratings.

The biggest tournaments were at the Northwest Debate Meet held by St. Thomas College in St. Paul, Minnesota, where the teams won 14 debates and lost 10 but still managed to place with high rankings in the Women's Quarter-finals.

At the Pi Kappa Delta Regional Tournament in Newton, Kansas, in the spring, the school was represented in all branches: debate, discussion and extemporaneous speaking.

Nebraska University awarded three superior awards to the Indian teams, and the first tournament of the year at Doane College proved successful when debaters won five superior ratings.

Rivals in state colleges were met at the Midland Invitational Tournament and at the Nebraska Intercollegiate Forensic Association meet at Hastings College.

Women's Athletic Association

Early in the fall the Women's Athletic Association, a branch of the National and Nebraska State Athletic Federation of College Women, launched its activities with a Sports Day to help new members get acquainted with each other and also with the sports offered.

For the first semester women's intramural sports included volleyball, field hockey, soccer, badminton, tennis and bowling. The second semester activities included bowling, basketball, softball, tennis, volleyball and badminton.

Officers for the past year were Virginia Layher, president; Joan Nelson, vice president; Shirley Welniak, secretary; Jo Olson, treasurer, and Helen Tiahart, intramural chairman. Sponsors were Miss Enid Wolcott, first semester, and Mrs. Betty Staskewitz, second semester.

“O” Club

OU's answer to that famous song, “Give me some men who are stout hearted men.” are 80 stalwart fellows claiming membership in the O Club.

Headed by President Rene Hlavac, Vice President Ray Schmidt and Secretary-Treasurer Lorelle Alford, the club increased its membership as athletics on the campus took strides forward.

One of their biggest jobs was selling programs at the basketball games and many of them helped run the Omaha High School Regional Basketball Tournament held for the first time in Omaha U's new Fieldhouse.

Sponsors for 1949-50 were R. Wayne Wilson and Don Pflasterer.

Highlight of the 1949 Ma-ie Day celebration was the Fieldhouse cornerstone laying ceremonies. Regent William Campen is pictured doing the honors.

Marilee Steinman reigned queen over the Ma-ie Day festivities. She is shown receiving the crown from President Bail while Student Council President Danny Koukal awaits his turn with flowers.

Despite ominous Friday 13th foreboding, Ma-ie Day brought OU students a typical midwestern sunshiny spring day.

Day-long activities got underway at Elmwood Park when 500 students attended an all-school breakfast followed by games which pitted the Greeks against the Independents.

The rest of the day was spent in traditional Ma-ie Day fashion as onlooking Omahans eyed the colorful Ma-ie Day parade. Something new was added to the customary floats as university students piloted an airplane cover.

The highlight of the afternoon of skits was the crowning of Marilee Steinman as Princess Attira XV. Activities came to the trail's end at Peony Park as 2000 students danced to the music of Barkley Allen's orchestra, and heard the winners of the skits and floats announced.

Alpha Phi Omega's humorous "Convocation" was awarded first place in the skit division. Sigma Chi Omicron and Phi Delta Psi placed second and third, respectively. Kappa Psi Delta received honorable mention. Chi Omega was revealed as the winner of the float contest while Sigma Chi Omicron took another second and Phi Sigma Phi received third place. Alpha Phi Omega was awarded honorable mention.

An alert photographer was present when the three gentlemen pictured attempted to hang one another with their neckties. Jim McPherson, Jim Ross and John Marshall had a slight altercation over who was to head the Ma-ie Day program in the auditorium that afternoon.

The photographer wasn't so alert in taking this picture though. A rumor that President Truman would head the parade produced this picture when the lensman thought the convertible-riding man with the hat was that exalted person. Unfortunately, he wasn't facing the camera.

The '49

Tom Tom Revue

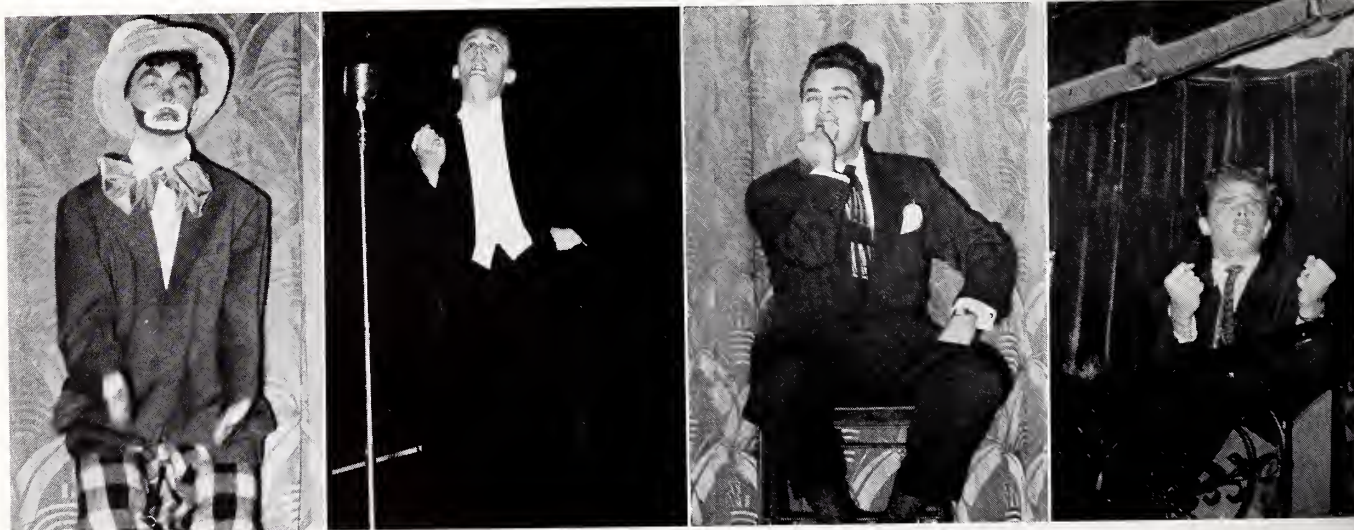

Take 65 talented students, mix well for two hours, add two zany emcees and their stooge, an ape from the "Club Brookfield" and what do you have? The 1949 Tom Tom Revue.

Those were the principal ingredients used for two consecutive nights, Nov. 17 and 18, which all but raised the roof on the auditorium.

Under the direction of Johnny Marshall, Jim Ross and Business Manager Chuck Boiler, a wide though well-balanced program of music, mirth, gags, gals and merriment was presented.

This year's Revue leaned heavily toward a vaudeville style of presenting talent. Ross and Marshall, who doubled at the "Club Brookfield special," handled act to act transitions.

Included in the cast were five vocalists—two male and three female. Also along the musical line were the Irvinaires, whipped up especially for the Revue by pianist Irv Jones. And what would a show be without its chorus girls? So 24 coeds were added to the cast for good measure. They participated in the "Similau" and "Sidewalks of New York" numbers. Jim Borland directed them.

Well-dressed Bev Copeland pantomimes the "Money Man," while Doug White ponders a remark from the peanut gallery. Hal Marer shows his Pepsodent smile to the audience while Vern Stearns debates: Resolved, that the moon is better looking than June.

Fred Astairish Jim Borland entertains with a difficult tap number.

The Irvinaires lull the audience with "What is this Thing Called Love."

The humor, something no Tom Tom Revue can do without, was divided between Hal Marer, Doug White, Vern Stearns, Berkley Forsythe and Beverly Copeland. And topping the humor, the emcees, as Bumbley and Crumbley, two dilapidated English hunters, put the "v" in variety and kept the audience laughing.

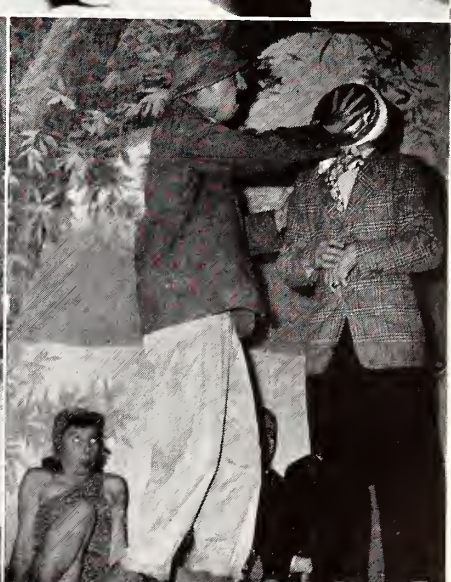

OU borrowed a page from the Oklahoma City zoo when an ape (top right) wandered aimlessly through the aisles.

A desert island touch with boingg was added by nine sarong-clad coeds, (top middle).

Getting into the act were the Tom Tom Revue's originators, Joe Baker and Harold Poff (bottom middle).

Last year's Revue emcee, Jack Feierman, (inset) mirrors the audience's reaction to the show.

Doffing their hats, the emcees (below) pay tribute to the king. The ape has one eye on the Stogie (Chuck Boiler) who is restrained by Jim Ross. Later the two had words which culminated in the Stogie getting the Buster Keaton special.

1950 Beauty Contest

Tomahawk Beauty Queen Barbara Haugness receives her bouquet from Mayor Glenn Cunningham.

Judges for this year's contest were the Honorable Glenn Cunningham, Mayor of Omaha and a former OU student, Mrs. Betty Silver and Kendrick Wilson. Mayor Cunningham presented the winner's bouquet, while Joan Swafford, who directed the contest for the Tomahawk, presented second and third place prizes. Tuck Moore was the master of ceremonies and Irvin Jones provided background music on the piano throughout the judging.

"Spotlight on beauty!"

That was the signal Feb. 24 that started 19 OU coeds on their stroll across the Omaha University stage toward the coveted 1950 Tomahawk Beauty Queen title.

This year entrants shunned their bobby sox and wore instead long, flowing, formal dresses. Each girl stood framed within the French doorway. Then, with the spotlight following across a darkened stage, she walked to the judges table, turned and moved off the stage.

Winner of the 1950 Tomahawk Beauty Queen title was blonde, blue eyed Barbara Haugness. Barbara Ehlers was chosen second and Gloria Haarmann took third place. Other finalists were Barbara DeBoer, Shirley Hawkins, and Marilyn Sibert.

'49 Homecoming

The alumni really came home at mid-century.

For the first time since the university's founding in 1908, all the Homecoming festivities were held on campus. On the day's schedule was a tour of decorated rooms, a Homecoming football game between OU and Colorado School of Mines, an open-house and the traditional Homecoming Dance.

An innovation at this year's Homecoming was President Bail's luncheon in the Faculty clubroom honoring all past senior class presidents.

Highlight of the halftime game ceremonies was the crowning of red-headed Eileen Wolfe as the 1949 Homecoming Princess. Her coronation was held during the Dance at Peony Park. After the coronation, braves and maids in attendance continued dancing to the music of Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra.

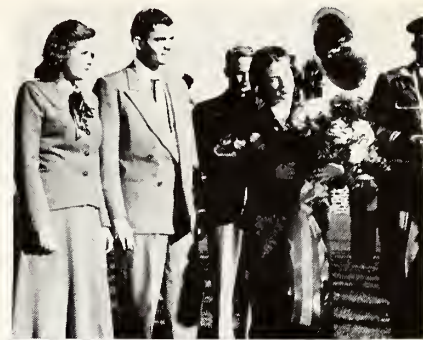

Winner of the room decorating contest was Sigma Chi Omicron's "Indians Dwarf the Orediggers." Newly founded Sigma Lambda Beta took second place and Alpha Sigma Lambda's "Circus" took third.

The big moment arrives for Queen Eileen as she receives the crown during intermission of the Homecoming Dance.

(Bottom of page) Competition among the university organizations produced these Homecoming rooms. Third place award went to the Alpha Sig's "Circus" while Sigma Lambda Beta's "talking Indian" got second honors. Sigma Chi's "Dwarf" room garnered the top award.

Sophomore Cotillion

The class of '52 presents:

THE FIRST ANNUAL SOPHOMORE COTILLION

This was the headline that announced OU's first class sponsored dance. A near capacity crowd danced to the music of Eddy Haddad in the Peony Park Ballroom.

Sophomore class officers and Student Council representatives had charge of everything from hanging the decorations to presenting the Christmas tree to a children's home. Highlight of the evening's entertainment was a waltz by eight couples, under the direction of sophomore class secretary Gloria Johnson.

Decorations were in the Christmas mood, with Christmas trees, tinsel, bells and evergreen sprigs. Silver stars covered with angel hair hung from the ceiling, creating an "out-of-door" effect.

The Cotillion took the place of the previous Christmas Dance, held in the past. Student Council members voted last year to put the dance in the hands of the sophomores to promote a feeling of class unity.

Junior Prom

"So now a slipper has been left by which the queen shall be revealed to all."

With these words Jerry Leffler revealed Jean Duncan Queen over the first annual Junior Prom, April 14 at Peony Park. "Her Highness" was presented during intermission ceremonies which carried out a Cinderella theme. Emcee Jerry Leffler, Junior Class president, gave her a silver compact after Page Jim Borland handed him the royal declaration.

The other five candidates were Norma Elfine, Gayle Eustice, Jacquie Geilus, Pat Perry and Joan Swafford. Juniors selected the six candidates from a list of 14 nominated by class officers and councilmen.

Eddy Haddad's orchestra played from 9 to midnight for the semi-formal dance. Faculty guests at the prom were President and Mrs. Milo Bail and Dean and Mrs. Ormsby Harry. Sponsors for the dance were Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Henry, Dr. and Mrs. L. O. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Tyson and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Crossman.

At first glance, you'd think it was a stretcher carried by Johnny Marshall and Hal Marer for the horizontal fella in the foreground. A second glance will tell you it's Doug White being assisted to his corner by his seconds. Meanwhile, Vanita Brown offers solace to Jack Dunlevy.

"The Male Animal"

Friday the 13th held few terrors for the cast of "The Male Animal." The quick moving Thurber-Nugent comedy was disposed of both nights by a well chosen cast that more than pleased the overflow audiences. Under the direction of Mrs. Frances McChesney Key, it was the first University Players production of the year.

"The Corn is Green"

Emlyn Williams Broadway hit, "The Corn is Green" came to Omaha U as the University Players spring production. A smattering of Welsh dialect, and the usual superior acting ability were the prerequisites for cast members. Under the direction of Mrs. Frances McChesney Key, the players brought Williams' characterizations to life, delighting packed auditorium audiences for two nights running, April 21 and 22.

Chi Omega

Zeta Delta Chapter

Zeta Delta chapter of Chi Omega ended its first year on the campus by capturing top honors for the 1949 Ma-ie Day float. Marilee Steinman was chosen Ma-ie Day Princess.

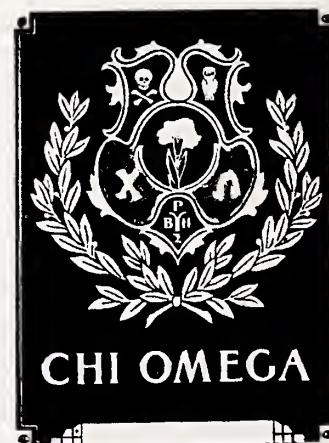

Rushing for the year 1949-1950 began September 8 with a party in the El Chico Room of the American Legion Club. Thirty-three rushees were pledged September 26 at the Preference Banquet at the Blackstone Hotel.

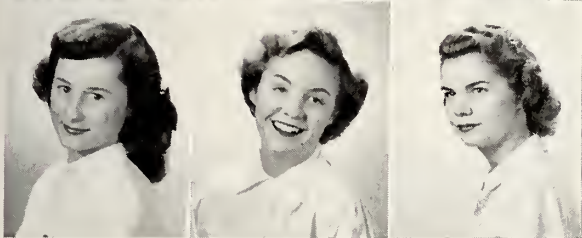

The Fall Eleusinian was celebrated October 7 at a picnic with the alumni. On October 26, after the initiation of Chloe Correll, an informal supper was given at the Blackstone Hotel.

The annual dinner dance was held November 25 at the Paxton Hotel.

A tea for the faculty, administration, alumni and presidents of other Greek organizations was given in January.

Initiation at the fall pledge class took place February 17 and 18 at the Paxton Hotel. After the Chi O's annual spring dance, the "Shamrock Shuffle," was held March 3 at Peony Park.

The formal Spring Eleusinian was held April 7. The University of Nebraska chapter and alumni members were honored guests at the banquet.

Chi Omega is represented in the Student Council by Joanne Larkin. Joan Nickerson was elected secretary-treasurer of the senior class, and Gloria Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the sophomore class. Barbara Haugness played the lead in "The Male Animal," and Bonnie Bernhard was chosen Typical Freshman Girl.

Project chairmen included: Personnel, Joan Nickerson; Activities, Jackie Zerbe; Vocations, Doris Hanson; Social and Civic Service, Gloria Pheney; and Rushing, Beverly Benson. Maridell Myers is Herald.

Members of the Chi O Advisory Board are Miss Margaret Killian, Miss Mildred Hollingsworth, Mrs. John Gustafson and Mrs. Carroll Eisenhart.

Gamma Sigma Omicron

These are two pages in the history of a growing organization. Looking over the historical details, it is found that Gamma was founded in 1924 as Sigma Omicron, a club within the Home Economics Department. Thumbing through the Inter-Sorority Council Record, it is seen that the group was accepted under the council in October of 1925 as Gamma Sigma Omicron sorority. Further research reveals that Gamma was formed first as a club and later chartered as a sorority with the idea of injecting a more democratic influence in the social life of the college.

Each year Gamma has grown in both activities and objectives. This year's activities were under the leadership of Glenna Perkins, president; Emmy Lou Lundt, vice president; Margie Batie, secretary; Joan Miller and Mary Ann Kardell, treasurers; Janis Colvin and Shirley Hawkins, pages. The alumni representative was Natalie Schroen, a graduate of 1949. Joan Bugbee represented the activities at alumni meetings. Sponsors for the group were Mrs. Nellie Jones and Mrs. Ernestine Bottlemey.

A schoolroom atmosphere hovered over the Birchwood Club september 10 when the Gammas opened their fall rushing. They chalked up the "School Daze" party as another chapter in the history of the twenty-five-year old sorority.

Two weeks of rushing followed and the rushees got a taste of college life. Then came Preference Day and a pledging ceremony in the Commander Room at the Legion Club September 26.

From there on, Gammas got into the swing of college and took active parts in Feathers, Home Economics Club, and W. A. A. The Bowling League, Debate, Gateway and Tomahawk staff, Tom-Tom Revue and Cheerleaders also had Gammas among their members.

For the fifth consecutive year, a Gamma presided over the Intersorority Council. This year's council president was Emmy Lou Lundt. Lois Brady served as City Editor of the Gateway for the first semester and shifted to the Editor's position for the second semester, while Glenna Perkins served as News Editor.

During Christmas vacation they held their annual Mother-Daughter tea carolled at several hospitals, and took part in a local house-to-house Red Cross Drive in March.

In November, Joan Bugbee was chosen "Sweater Girl of '49" at a Phi Sig-Gamma dance held at the Chieftain Hotel in Council Bluffs. And in April, the Gammas did a turn-about play and elected "The Most Eligible Bachelor of '50."

All the activities, the Homecoming Room, Ma-ie Day skit and float, and Pledge Skip night brought a better understanding of the privileges of friendship. There was shared pride in the symbol of the green and white harp, the triangular pearl, and ruby pin and the traditional "Oh, Gamma Sigma Omicron, We Sing of Thee." Together the Gammas worked for the ideals of the friendship circle, the requisites for the opportunity of a happy life when college days are over.

Kappa Psi Delta

Kappa Psi Delta is one of the oldest greek letter organizations on campus, but the youthful ideas of its members are exemplified by their social events and participation in various school activities.

The year started with the Kappa Kandyland rush party followed by the Preference Banquet at which twenty-five girls received their pledge pins. Then came a few of the traditional events: the barn dance; the Christmas party at Marilyn and Donna Hayes' home; the Mother-Daughter tea and the Alumnae party.

There was also the annual Cupid's Beau Dance, which was given for all Greeks at the Fontenelle Hotel. Then came the most important event, the activation ceremonies.

The Kappas were active members and officers in many other student activities, such as the Gateway, Home Economics Club, Feathers and University Players.

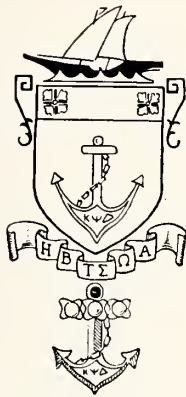

The girls gave some thought to studies, too. They hold the scholarship cup awarded last year at the second annual Greek Banquet for maintaining the highest average of all sororities.

Even though social events, scholarship and extra-curricular activities occupied the time of every girl, the sorority also gave a helping hand to children. They sent books and supplies overseas and contributed their Kandy Kastle to the Children's Memorial Hospital.

The officers were Eda Ree Hass, president; Carol Miles, vice president; Maulfrey Stewart, secretary; Joyce Roesky, treasurer; Marilyn Everett, sergeant-at-arms; Marion Heiser, historian and Nancy Spring, social chairman.

The faculty advisors were Miss Alice C. Smith, Mrs. Catherine Thomas and Mrs. Mildred Gearhart.

Alpha Xi Delta

Gamma Delta Chapter

Phi Delta Psi affiliated with Alpha Xi Delta fraternity on February 12, 1950. It became the seventy-sixth chapter and is known as Gamma Delta Chapter.

The Phi Deltas greeted fall rushees in the Assembly Room of the Fontenelle Hotel on September 4. Delicate baby orchids flown in from Hawaii were given as favors. The South Sea Island theme was used for the main rush party. The rushees received Hawaiian leis and were served huki-lao, consisting of baked ham, breads, pineapple rings and fruit.

Twenty-one women were pledged at the Preference Banquet held in the Black Mirror Room on September 21. After late rushing, six more received the Phi Delt pledge pin at a pot-luck supper.

A "Mystery Party" was held in November in conjunction with Phi Sigma Phi fraternity. The organizations and their dates boarded buses at OU and left for a destination known only to the planning committee. Dancing at the Episcopal Church recreation hall in Blair climaxed the ride.

The Christmas holidays provided a full schedule for the Phi Deltas. Included were an alumnus party at Miller Park Pavillion where a basket was filled for a needy family, a caroling party and a Christmas tea.

January 30 marked the date of the annual all-Greek "Devil Dance" at Peony Park. Dave Elmore was elected King Satan from the fraternity contestants. A singing skit was presented

Members of the group are active and hold offices in many on and off-campus organizations. These include University Players, WAA, Feathers, Home Ec Club, Alpha Lambda Delta, Corinthians, Student Council, Intersorority Council, Student Publications, the Tom Tom Review, and the Band.

The Phi Delts ended last year by winning third place in the Ma-ie Day skit contest.

Sorority officers for the year were Shirley Alberti, president; Jean Bressler, vice president; Sue Amick, secretary; Joan Nelson, treasurer; Shirley Welniak, sergeant-at-arms; and Jean Reid, historian. Lending a helping hand were sponsors Leta Holley and Ellen Lord.

Heading the pledge group first semester were: Charlotte Longville, president; Joan Eddy, vice president; Janis Johnson, secretary; and Syntha Judd, treasurer.

Sigma Chi Omicron

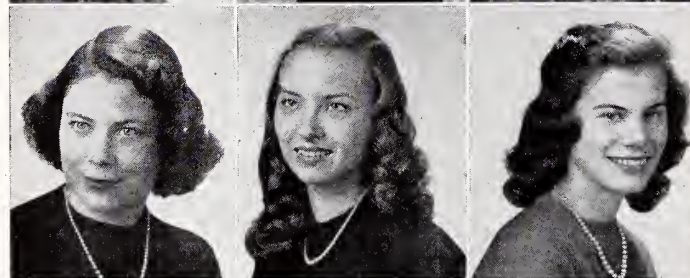

Sigma Chi Omicron, now in its thirty-sixth year of existence, looks with pride on the year of events nearing completion and the part each of its members took in making it successful.

Last spring many hours of work and fun which went into our skit and float for Ma-ie Day were rewarded with second place honors.

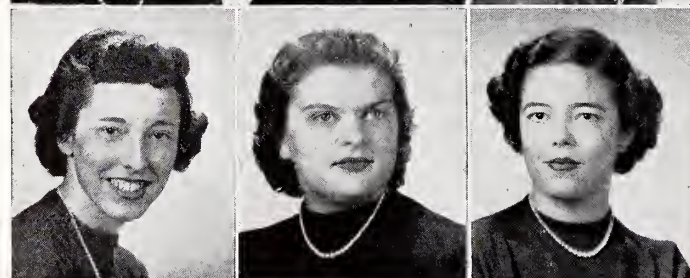

Then came Homecoming. Originality, plus hustling but happy workers, proved again the formula for success. Our 'Seven Dwarf's' theme won first place in the decorations contest. We Sig Chis are also a fun-loving sorority so to begin our social events for the year our alumnae treated us to a square dance and barbecue party. In November an informal dance with the Alpha Sigs proved to be freat fun. December 23 was the date of our annual all-Greek formal dance. Our meanest and sweetest pledges and actives were made known at this holiday affair. We wound up the year with our annual spring dinner dance.

The annual Tomahawk Beauty contest in February proved that the Sig Chis have beauty too. Barbara Ehlers received second place and Gloria Haarman third.

So with a wonderful year behind us, Sig Chis look forward to future years as leaders on the campus under the fine guidance of our sponsors Miss Gertrude Kincaide and Mrs. Robert Harper.

Alpha Sigma Lambda

At the beginning of the school year, the Alpha Sigs held their annual rush party at Miller Park Pavillion. Pledges for the first semester numbered thirty-three.

The second event of the year was a Mothers' Day tea, at which Dr. Nell Ward formally accepted the honorary position of Alpha Sig Fraternity Mother.

Thanksgiving morning Alpha Sigs defeated the Thetas in the annual Alpha Sig-Theta T-Bowl football game.

In December a thirtieth anniversary dance was held at Hotel Chieftain in Council Bluffs for Alpha Sigs and their dates.

Many Alpha Sigs held class offices and representing the fraternity on the Student Council were Dick Johnson and Jim Townsend. In addition Alpha Sigs were active in all phases of school activities and organizations.

The main social events for the second semester included the pledging of six new members, a steak fry for Alpha Sigs and their dates, and a stag party. In May, the Alpha Sigs held their annual Sweetheart dance at the Field Club. The 1949 Alpha Sig Sweetheart was chosen at the dance.

HISTORY

Alpha Sigma Lambda, which was founded in 1919, continued as the largest fraternity on the University of Omaha campus the past year. The officers were Erwin Schultz, president; Jerry Leffler, vice president; Frank Parks, secretary first semester; Jim Knudsen, secretary second semester; Jim Borland, treasurer; Tom Meyer, corresponding secretary and historian; John Adams, pledge master.

The representatives to the interfraternity council were Jerry Leffler who was president of the group the second semester, and John Jones, who was vice president.

Theta Chi Delta Zeta Chapter

Phi Sigma Phi Fraternity was installed as Delta Zeta Chapter of Theta Chi National Fraternity on May 6. Mr. Stuart Kelley, president of Theta Chi, and a committee of national officers presided at the installation.

Phi Sigma Phi, the first fraternity on the campus, celebrated its fortieth anniversary this year. A busy social schedule was followed, members played an important role in all school activities, and the fraternity prospered in both scholarship and sports.

For the fourth consecutive year a Phi Sig was president of the Student Council. Lloyd Metheny headed both the Council and the Arrowhead Leadership Society. Bill Sykora and Ray Hampton also represented their classes on the Council.

Harry Elsasser served as president of the Interfraternity Council the first semester and as vice-president of the senior class. Phi Sigs had the highest scholastic average among fraternities for the 1948-49 school year.

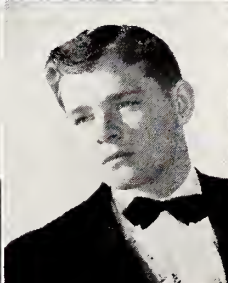

The first Cereal Bowl football game against Sigma Lambda Beta resulted in a 32-0 victory for Phi Sigs. Joan Bugbee, Gamma, was named first Phi Sig sweater girl at the annual Sweater Dance at Hotl Chieftain. A mystery bus ride with Phi Deltas, a barbecue with Sig Chis, and a Christmas caroling party with Chi O's completed the first semester social schedule. On April 1 they held their Dream Girl Prom.

Sigma Lambda Beta

Sigma Lambda Beta was founded in the spring of 1949 by Richard W. Brooke, Nicholas G. T. Burke, and William G. Woodard, thus becoming the fifth social fraternity active at the university. The gold and white of Sigma Lambda Beta have been seen with increasing prominence in campus activities this year.

Early in September, the Sig Lamb rush party was held at the Birchwood Club. The eighteen pledges selected made up the first pledge class in Sig Lamb history.

Homecoming was Sigma Lambda Beta's first major activity of the year. "Horace," the giant Indian, won second place in the room decoration contest. Pledges Art Allen and Sig Nelson were responsible for Horace.

A treasure hunt early in November was the first item on the social calendar. Sig Lamb pledges also participated in the all-

The first annual Cereal Bowl Football game was played between the Phi Sigs and Sig Lambs in November. Sigma Lambda was also active in intramural athletics, under the leadership of Tom Heafey, athletic chairman. Sig Lamb names were prominent in such campus activities as Alpha Phi Omega, Warriors, and Gateway.

Officers for the year were: Bill Woodard, president; Jack Gates, vice president; Allan Mavis, secretary; Walter Kunold, recording secretary; Dick Reida, treasurer; and Jim Martin, historian. Interfraternity Council representatives were Bill Woodard and Lucien LaRue.

Pledge officers were Sig Nelsen, president; Gene Heins, vice president; Frank Skrupa, secretary; Joy Wallum, recording secretary; and Bob Henkel, treasurer.

Sponsors for the year were Mr. Laurence A. Frye, Dr. Frank H. Gorman and Mrs. J. D. Tyson.

Theta Phi Delta

Theta Phi Delta has the honor of being the second oldest social fraternity at the university. Founded in 1916, it has been active on the campus since that time, except for the war years. A few of the distinguished alumni of Theta Phi Delta are the Honorable Glenn Cunningham, Mayor of Omaha, Dr. William H. Thompson, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences of the University, and William H. Campen, university Regent.

Theta Phi Delta spiced the social calendar this year with its Pre-Spring Formal at the Blackstone Hotel, March 1. At this dance—the first formal affair since before the war—the Sorority Girl of 1950 was elected.

Officers of the active chapter were Warren Christie, president; George Reid, vice president; Kenneth Brooke, secretary; William Arnold, treasurer; Jim Tagney, pledge master and intramural director; Verne Sweigard, sergeant-at-arms; and Wally Wright, historian. Walt Nabity was pledge president and Bob Hansen, Eldon Steele and Jim Swanson were vice president, secretary and treasurer, respectively. Jim Theta Phi Delta fielded a team in all intramural sports during the year and won the intrafraternity football trophy. For the first time in many years. Theta lost the annual T-Bowl game with Alpha Sig on Thanksgiving Day.

As always, Theta Phi Delta was active during the year in all-school affairs, participating in Homecoming and Ma-ie Day festivities. Ben Tobias was vice president of the Student Council; Verne Sweigard held the presidency of the University Players; and Bernie Anderson lettered on the varsity track squad. Theta co-sponsored the bonfire rally for the OU-St. Ambrose football game. And at Phi Delt's Devil Dance at Peony Park, Dave Elmore was elected King Satan.

In addition to the formal dance, other social activities during the year were the picnic supper in Elmwood Park, followed by dancing in the Pow Wow Inn in October, the stag party at Howard and Noland Vogt's in March, the annual Mother's Day Tea in May, and the year-end picnic at Valley—a traditional affair of Theta Phi Delta.

Alpha Phi Omega

Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity, is open to all students formerly allied with the Boy Scouts of America.

Alpha Phi Omega is devoted to assembling college men in the fellowship of the Scout Oath and Law, to developing friendship and to promoting service to humanity. The fraternity's program embodies four fields of activity:

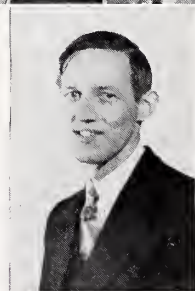

- Service to the student body and faculty;
- Service to the youth and community;
- Service to members of the fraternity;
- Service to the nation as participating citizens.

Officers for the year 1949-1950 were: Jackson Smart, president; Dale Buchanan, vice president; Lucien La Rue, secretary; and Robert R. Root, treasurer. Robert Rhodes was alumni secretary and James Innis, historian.

During the past year, Alpha Theta Chapter performed a valuable service to the community by sponsoring the largest single donation of blood in Douglas County for the Omaha Red Cross Blood Bank. Members also assisted the Goodwill Industries in collection of clothes for needy persons, and provided assistant Scoutmasters for various local troops.

Tyson

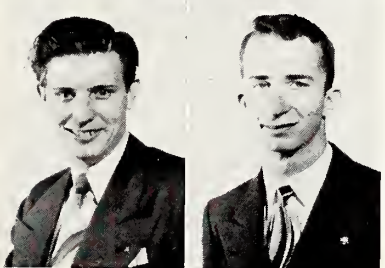

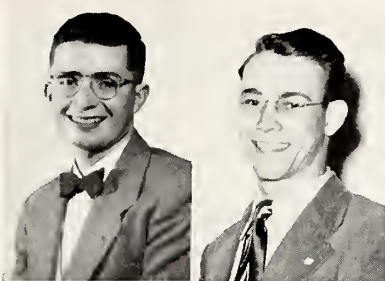

Rice

Members served the student body and faculty by providing check room service at school functions, distributing Student Handbooks and ushering.

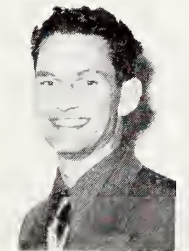

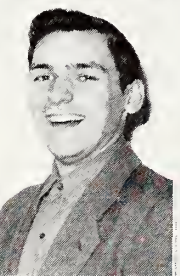

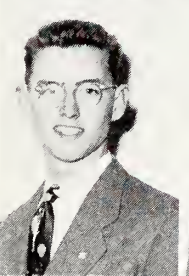

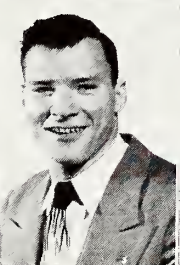

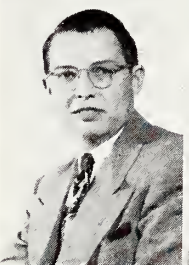

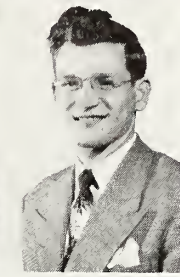

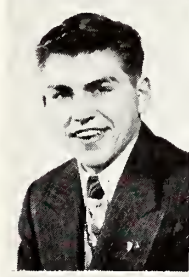

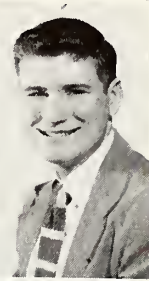

The other social event of the year is the Annual Founder's Day Banquet and installation of officers. Other social events included a Halloween Party at Inspiration Lodge, and a Valentine Dance.

Faculty sponsors for the chapter are Mr. Harry Rice, Mr. M. P. Bar-dolph and Mr. James D. Tyson.

Delta Sigma Pi

Gamma Eta Chapter

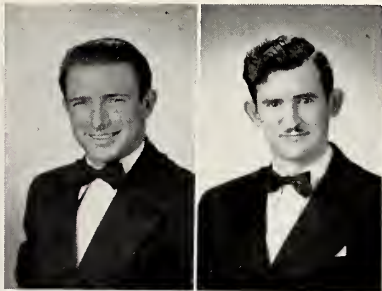

Gamma Eta Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi celebrated its first full year of campus activity with the close of this semester. Although this is Deltasigs first year on campus, they were preceded by local counterpart, Delta Beta Phi, which was organized in 1947.

For a comparatively young organization, their achievements are noteworthy. For the third successive year Deltasigs have held the posts of Business Manager and Advertising Manager of Student Publications. This year's managers were Milo Treska and Jack Schuchart.

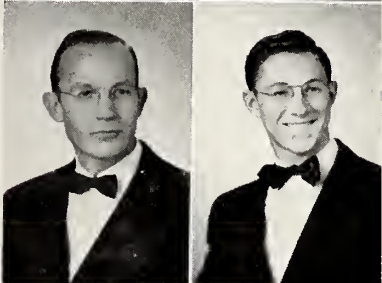

This year's major activity was the trip taken by the five delegates to the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress of Delta Sigma Pi, held in Baltimore, Maryland, September 7-8-9. The delegation included George Wickman, Darrell Wentworth, Carroll Marshall, Milo Treska, and Jack Schuchart. Following the convention the group toured the east.

Delta Sigma Pi finished a busy year with their annual dinner-dance in April and their regional convention, also in April, held in Lincoln, Nebraska.

Delta Sigma Pi was founded at New York University on November 7, 1907. The frater-

Beta Tau Kappa

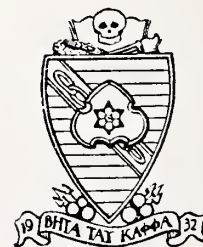

During the third year of its reorganization, Beta Tau Kappa took giant strides toward achieving its goals of fraternalism.

Among the social activities during the year was the annual Spring Fever dance. It was supplemented by a barn dance, several house parties, and numerous stags. At one of the house parties the members had to become detectives. Paul Saltzman, in charge of arrangement, handed out the clues which finally led to the home where the party was to be held. The team led by Barney Kadis proved to be the Sam Spades of the organization.

B.T.K. teams were represented in many intramural sports. Al Epstein and Leroy Katz proved to be the two most outstanding members on the athletic field.

However, scholarship was not forgotten, for B.T.K. walked off with the scholarship cup for the school year 1948-49. The individual highest scholastic honor was also won by a B.T.K. man, Sid Nearenberg.

Fraternity officers were Arthur Leftitz, president; Willis Epstein, vice president; Sheldon Coren, secretary; Jack Noodell, treasurer; and Gerald Meyers, historian. Leonard Weiner and Tom Brock sponsored the organization.

Greek Week

A spirit of cooperation and improvement prevailed among Greeks on the Omaha U campus at the third annual Greek Week on March 24 and 25, 1950.

National fraternity and sorority representatives were in the spotlight during the two-day festivities sponsored by the Interfraternity and Intersorority Councils.

Dr. Frank H. Gorman of the OU Department of Education opened the activities Friday afternoon at a general assembly in the university auditorium. His topic was "You and Your Fraternity."

Other prominent speakers at the banquet, luncheon and various workshops were: Major General Carl R. Gray, chief of the National Veterans' Administration and member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Stuart Kelly, national president of Theta Chi; Mrs. Mildred Cromwell, national secretary of Kappa Delta; John Binning, Phi Gamma Delta; and Dr. Gorman, founder of Sigma Tau Gamma.

At the all-Greek banquet Friday evening, John W. Lucas and Ormsby Harry presented the scholarship award to Alpha Xi Delta sorority and Phi Sigma Phi fraternity. The actives with the highest scholarship were Marion Heiser, Kappa Psi Delta, and Harry Elsasser, Phi Sigma Phi. Pledge scholarship awards went to Ann Williams, Chi Omega, and Jim Townsend, Alpha Sigma Lambda.

A Saturday luncheon closed the Greek Week business activities. An informal dance at the Field Club Ballroom on Saturday night ended the week on a lighter note.

Jerry Leffler was general Greek Week chairman.

Greek Dances

Ray Abeita took honors at "Cupid's Beau" Dance

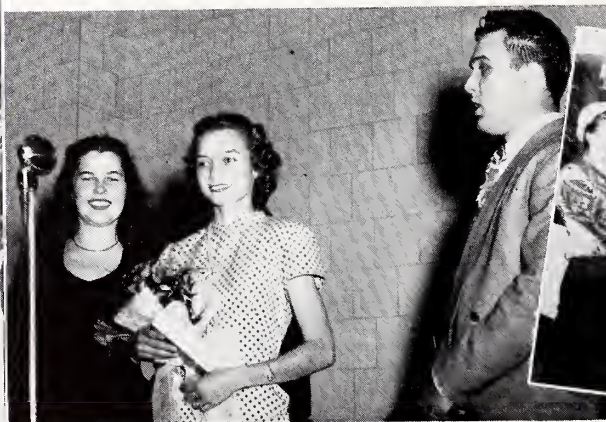

Omaha University Greeks opened their 1949-1950 social season at Peony Park on Nov. 4 with the annual pledge dance, "Paddle Pushers" sponsored by the Junior Council. This opening attraction was followed by Sigma Chi Omicron's semi-formal dance given during Christmas vacation. The first all-Greek dance of the new year was Phi Delta Psi's annual "Devil Dance" at Peony on January 30, with Dave Elmore of Theta Phi Delta ruling as King Satan.

Kappa Psi Delta selected the Fontenelle Hotel ballroom for their "Cupid's Beau" dance and dancers selected Ray Abeita of Sigma Lambda Beta as Cupid's Beau on Feb. 10.

Chi Omega brought in an informal note on March 3 with their "Shamrock Shuffle" sweater dance. Something new in Greek dances was the Theta Phi Delta formal on March 11 where Barbara Haugness of Chi Omega was revealed as "Outstanding Sorority Girl of 1950." In April Phi Sigma Phi sponsored the "Dream Girl Prom", Gamma Sigma Omicron held their annual "Bachelor's Ball," and Delta Sigma Pi elected a "Rose of Delta Sig" for their dance. Completing the Greek dance season was the Alpha Sigma Lambda "Sweetheart Dance" in May at the University Fieldhouse.

Dave Elmore is crowned King Satan at "Devil Dance."

Intersorority Style Show

"March winds bring April showers," as the saying goes. And the Intersorority Council took that phrase to heart when it planned its annual Style Show March 29.

An umbrella theme surrounded the 25 girls as they walked in an "S" shaped design on the auditorium floor. Topps, Inc., of Benson furnished the wardrobes.

The Spring Style Show was presented in the late afternoon for all university women. Betsy Green, Chi Omega, was chairman.

Five girls from each sorority modeled. They were:

Alpha Xi: Dorothy Hines, Syntha Judd, Charlotte Longville, Rogene Pearson and Shirley Welniak; Chi Omega: Norma Elfline, Barbara Haugness, Barbara McCaslin, Phyllis Rydberg and Pat Smith.

Gamma Sigma Omicron: Joan Bugbee, Harriet Burbridge, Peggy Menck, Dorothy Oleson and Shirley Wiles; Kappa Psi Delta; Betty Elfline, Marilyn Everett, Edith Kutjlek, Ruth Lane and Sally Lang; Sigma Chi Omicron: Barbara Ehlers, Nancy Hileman, Betty Karr, Marilyn Sibert and Peggy Smith.

Interfraternity Council

A more co-ordinated plan of interfraternity cooperation has been the aim of the 1949-1950 Interfraternity Council. A committee was set up to study and formulate a more effective plan of pledge training. Another committee was formed jointly with the Intersorority Council to find out the needs and make the recommendations for a proposed greek wing in the Student Union Building.

The council sponsored the annual Greek Week, which included seminars conducted by national sorority and fraternity representatives, a banquet and an all-greek dance.

Officers for the first semester were Harry Elsasser, president; John Jones, vice president; Jerry Leffler, secretary. and Morton Kaplan, treasurer. New officers for the second semester were Jerry Leffler, president, and Jim Daley, secretary.

Members of the Council included John Jones and Jerry Leffler, Alpha Sigma Lambda; Jerry Roitstein and Morton Kaplan, Beta Tau Kappa; Harry Elsasser, Charles Drapalik and Alex Morar, Phi Sigma Phi; Bill Woodard and Lucien La Rue, Sigma Lambda Beta; and Jim Tagney and Jim Daley, Theta Phi Delta.

Intersorority Council

The Intersorority Council, as the governing body of the greek social sororities, met last spring to formulate program plans for the fall rush season.

This year, 118 rushees met the five sororities for the first time at the annual rush tea held at the Fontenelle Hotel, September 3.

After two weeks of parties and informal rushing, the rushees signed preferences for Chi Omega, Gamma Sigma Omicron, Kappa Psi Delta, Phi Delta Psi and Sigma Chi Omicron.

In addition to planning rushing, the Intersorority Council entertained the women of the university at a tea and style show on March 29. Betsy Green was director of the show. The models were members of the various sororities.

This year, the Council again cooperated with the Interfraternity Council in the presentation of the Third Annual Greek Week festivities.

Emmy Lou Lundt served as president; Jacqueline Geilus, vice president; Pat Hasch, secretary; Edith Hass, treasurer; and Betsy Green, social chairman. Dean Mary Padou Young was faculty advisor.

A new Fieldhouse, a new Stadium, and a marching band with new uniforms sent pep and spirit at Omaha University soaring this fall. And it was upheld by pep rallies both at the university and downtown.

Spearheading the drive for added enthusiasm was the Interpep Committee which coordinated the activities of the band, cheerleaders, Feathers, and Warriors.

Perhaps it was the marching band that boosted spirit, perhaps it was the added enrollment, perhaps it was the fact that athletic contests were held on the university campus for the first time. Or perhaps it was all of these things that gave pep a roaring sendoff into the second half of the century.

Interpep Committee

In the spring of 1948, the Interpep Committee was set up as a coordinating organization for the band, cheerleaders, Feathers and Warriors. Its purpose was to plan pep rallies, half-time entertainment and all other functions designed to increase school spirit.

The head of the cheerleaders acts as chairman of the committee. Two members from each of the other organizations are elected by the group each May.

Activities this year included selection of cheerleaders, assisting in planning Homecoming festivities, planning a rally at the Court House, co-sponsoring the "Big Blaze" and snake dance, and other pep rallies.

Members this year were: Ed Klima and Jerry Leffler from the band; Jim Borland from the cheerleaders; Beverly Swahn and Eileen Wolfe from the Feathers; and Wally Baker and Bob Hanson from the Warriors.

Mr. Robert Mossholder served as faculty sponsor.

Cheerleaders

Cheerleaders bolstered school spirit this year with new yells and new uniforms.

Jim Borland was elected captain and led the pep team at football and basketball games. He was a two-year veteran of the squad as was Jean Duncan. New cheerleaders were Shirley Wiles, Carolyn Jackson, Inis Michelsen, Jackie Zerbe, and Wally Baker.

Included in the cheerleader's activities was a downtown pep rally and a team send-off at the Union Station, as well as several pep rallies.

The Feathers

Tradition started the active year for Feathers Chapter of Phi Sigma Chi, national honorary service organization for upper-class college women. A rush tea was held in the Faculty Clubroom early in the fall. In October, 38 girls were given their red and black pledge ribbons at a candlelight ceremony which followed a dessert supper.

The year was full of "news" for the Feathers. New sponsors for the year were Mrs. Betty Staskewitz and Miss Frances Holliday. New officers were: Eileen Wolfe, president; Jean Satrapa, vice president; Eleanor Stastny, secretary; Marion Heiser, treasurer; Maulfrey Stewart, corresponding secretary; and Roberta Grosvenor, publicity chairman. A new high in membership—54 girls—was realized, too. And the new Fieldhouse and Stadium saw a bigger and better Feathers cheering section at games.

And behind the "new" Feathers was the same spirit that the Feathers have had since the group started on the campus. The Feathers were always present in their red and black at football, basketball, baseball, and hockey games; they ushered at convocations and other school functions; they helped sponsor migration days; did work on Vocations Day; put on half-time game entertainments; sponsored the Joe College dance and election; and most of all, they represented the school spirit of Omaha U.

Omicron Pi Omicron

Warriors

Founded in the spring of 1948, the Warriors, men's pep organization, has contributed much to bolster school spirit.

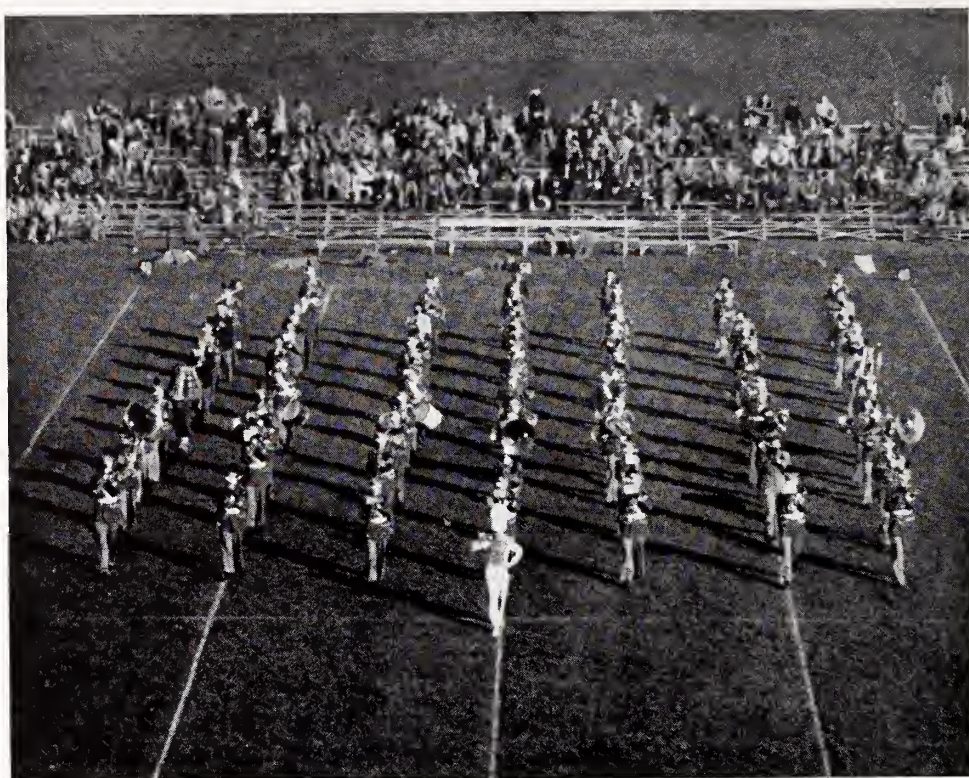

This year they have staged several pep rallies in which members of the basketball teams have been introduced to the school. Among these was a bonfire rally on the campus at which President Bail spoke and a rally in front of the Courthouse.

Together with the Feathers, Omicron Pi Omicron sponsored the first Migration Day. The trip to the Doane football game was a high point in the year's activities. The group also joined with the girl's organization to present the halftime entertainment for the Homecoming game.

At the dedication of the new Fieldhouse the Warriors gave the university a new trophy for the outstanding basketball player of the year. Warriors aided in choosing cheerleaders and ushering at various school activities.

Officers of the pep organization for the current year were George Wilcox, president; Charles E. Djureen, vice president; Bill Samuelson, secretary; and Robert N. Jones, treasurer.

Sponsors are Mr. Robert Mossholder and Mr. Paul Stageman.

The Band

For the first time in years, Indian rooters had band music at athletic contests as the University Marching Band was organized.

Under the leadership of Band Director V. J. Kennedy and Drum Major Marlin Constance, 75 students met to form the band. After many practices and rehearsals, OU had a band but no band uniforms. Then Mr. Eugene D. Eppley came forward with a donation of 75 uniforms.

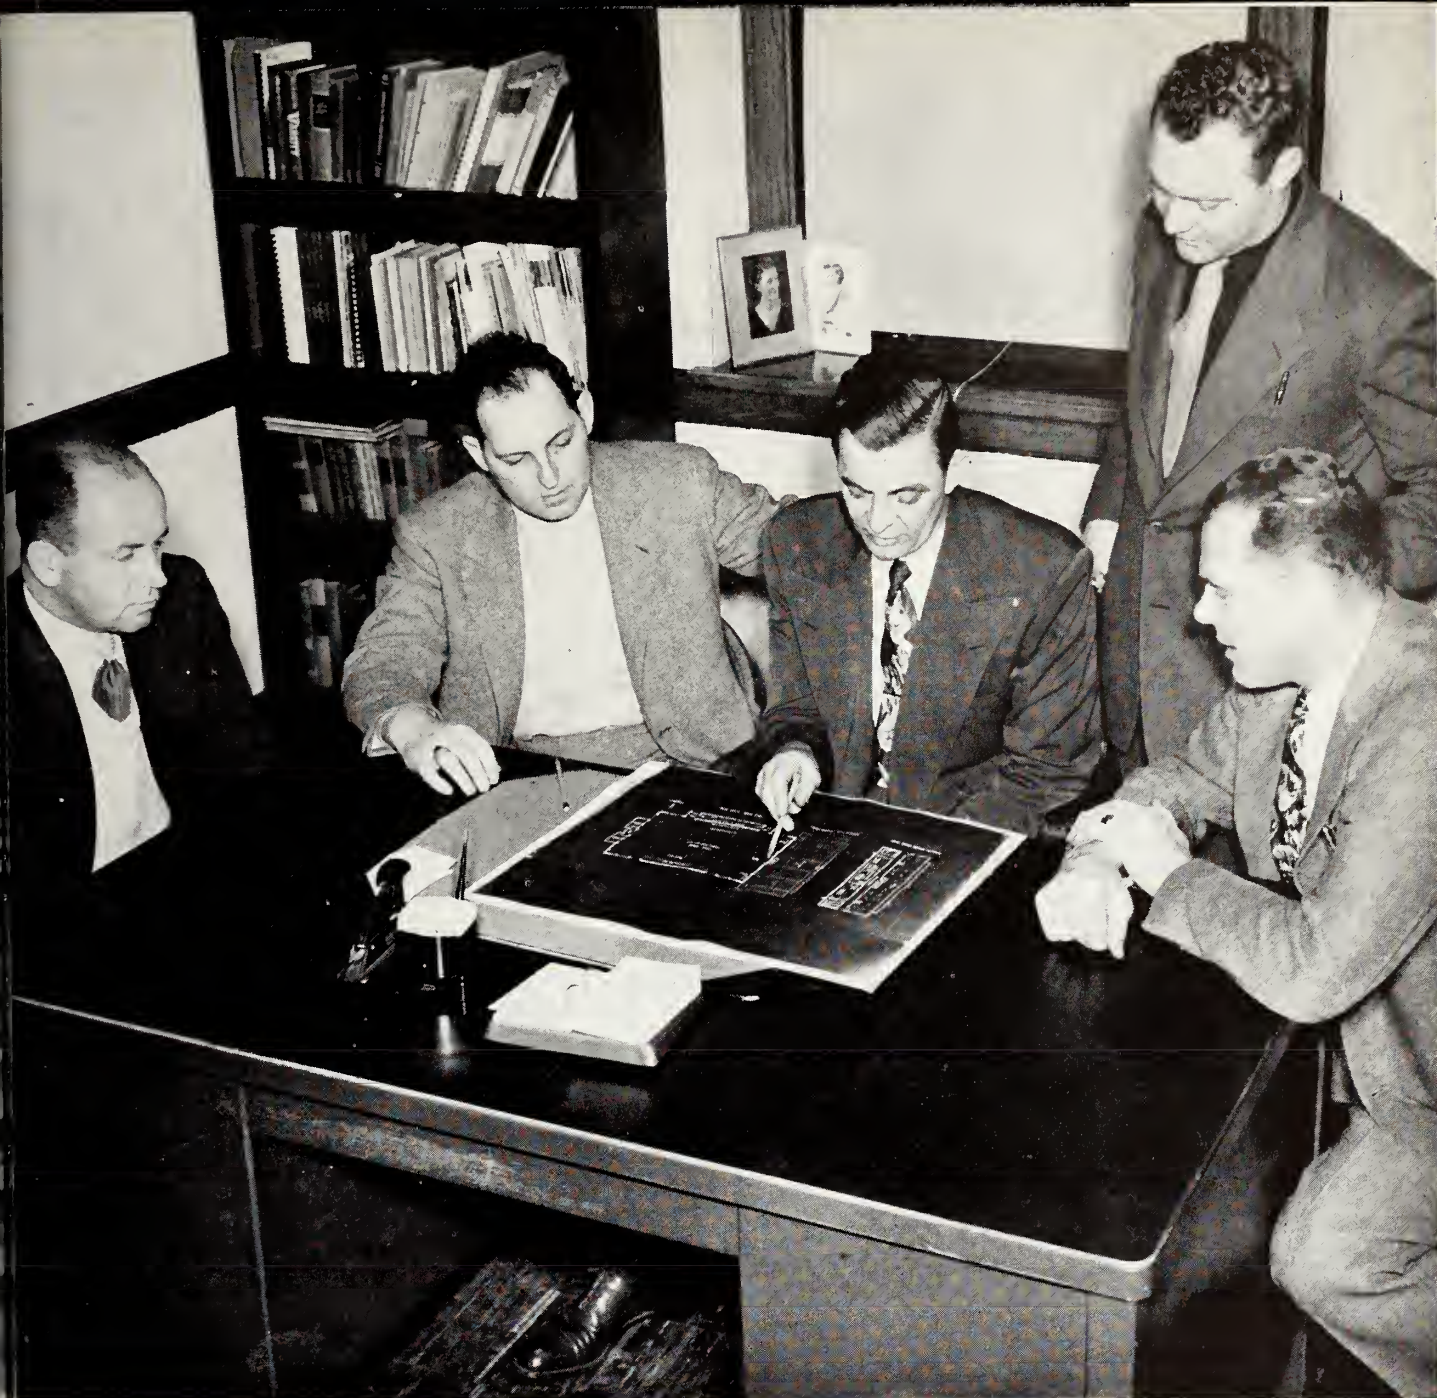

And the band looked little short of spectacular as they went through fancy formations during halftimes dressed in bright red coats, powder blue trousers, white Sam Browne belts and red and blue caps with white leather visors and black plumes, while the drum major wore white with gold trim and a gold shako.

In addition to playing at games, the band made the Migration Day trip to Doane, played at pep rallies, and presented a band concert to a standing-room-only auditorium crowd.

A MIDDAY SNOW FLURRY failed to hold down attendance at the opening of the new Omaha U Fieldhouse February 23 as 4,500 people jammed the rollaway bleachers and overflowed onto the dirt track around the floor to watch Don Pflasterer's Indians become the first Omaha basketball team to play "at home." Shown above, Athletic Director Virgil Yelkin proudly conducts a tour of the new plant for President Milo Bail, President Emeritus Rowland Haynes, and Robert Storz, head of the Building and Grounds Committee of the Board of Regents.

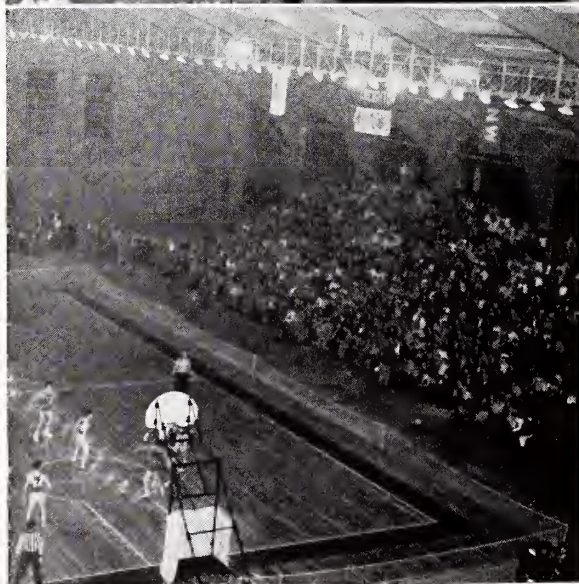

EIGHT MEN FORMED THE COACHING STAFF at Omaha U during the 1949-50 season. Virgil Yelkin completed his fourth year as athletic director. Only newcomer to the staff was Tom Brock, who replaced his brother Charlie as football line coach and Papoose basketball mentor. Continuing as head football and track coach was Lloyd Cardwell, the former "Wild Hoss" of Nebraska University football fame. Ednie Gorr, director of intramural athletics, assisted "Cardy" in football and track. Don Pflasterer handled basketball and B team football, Allie Morrison was wrestling coach, Johnny Campbell coached golf, and George Pritchard handled the tennis team. The regular staff is shown above, discussing seating arrangements for the Creighton game.

In his brother's footsteps, Tom Brock peers over line roster formerly handled by brother Charlie.

Below: Omaha University basketballers charge onto floor for first varsity appearance in new Fieldhouse.

Capacity crowd of over four thousand jams Fieldhouse.

A New Plant, A New Coach

Opening of the new Fieldhouse gave OU students a chance to see one of the finest athletic plants in the mid-west.

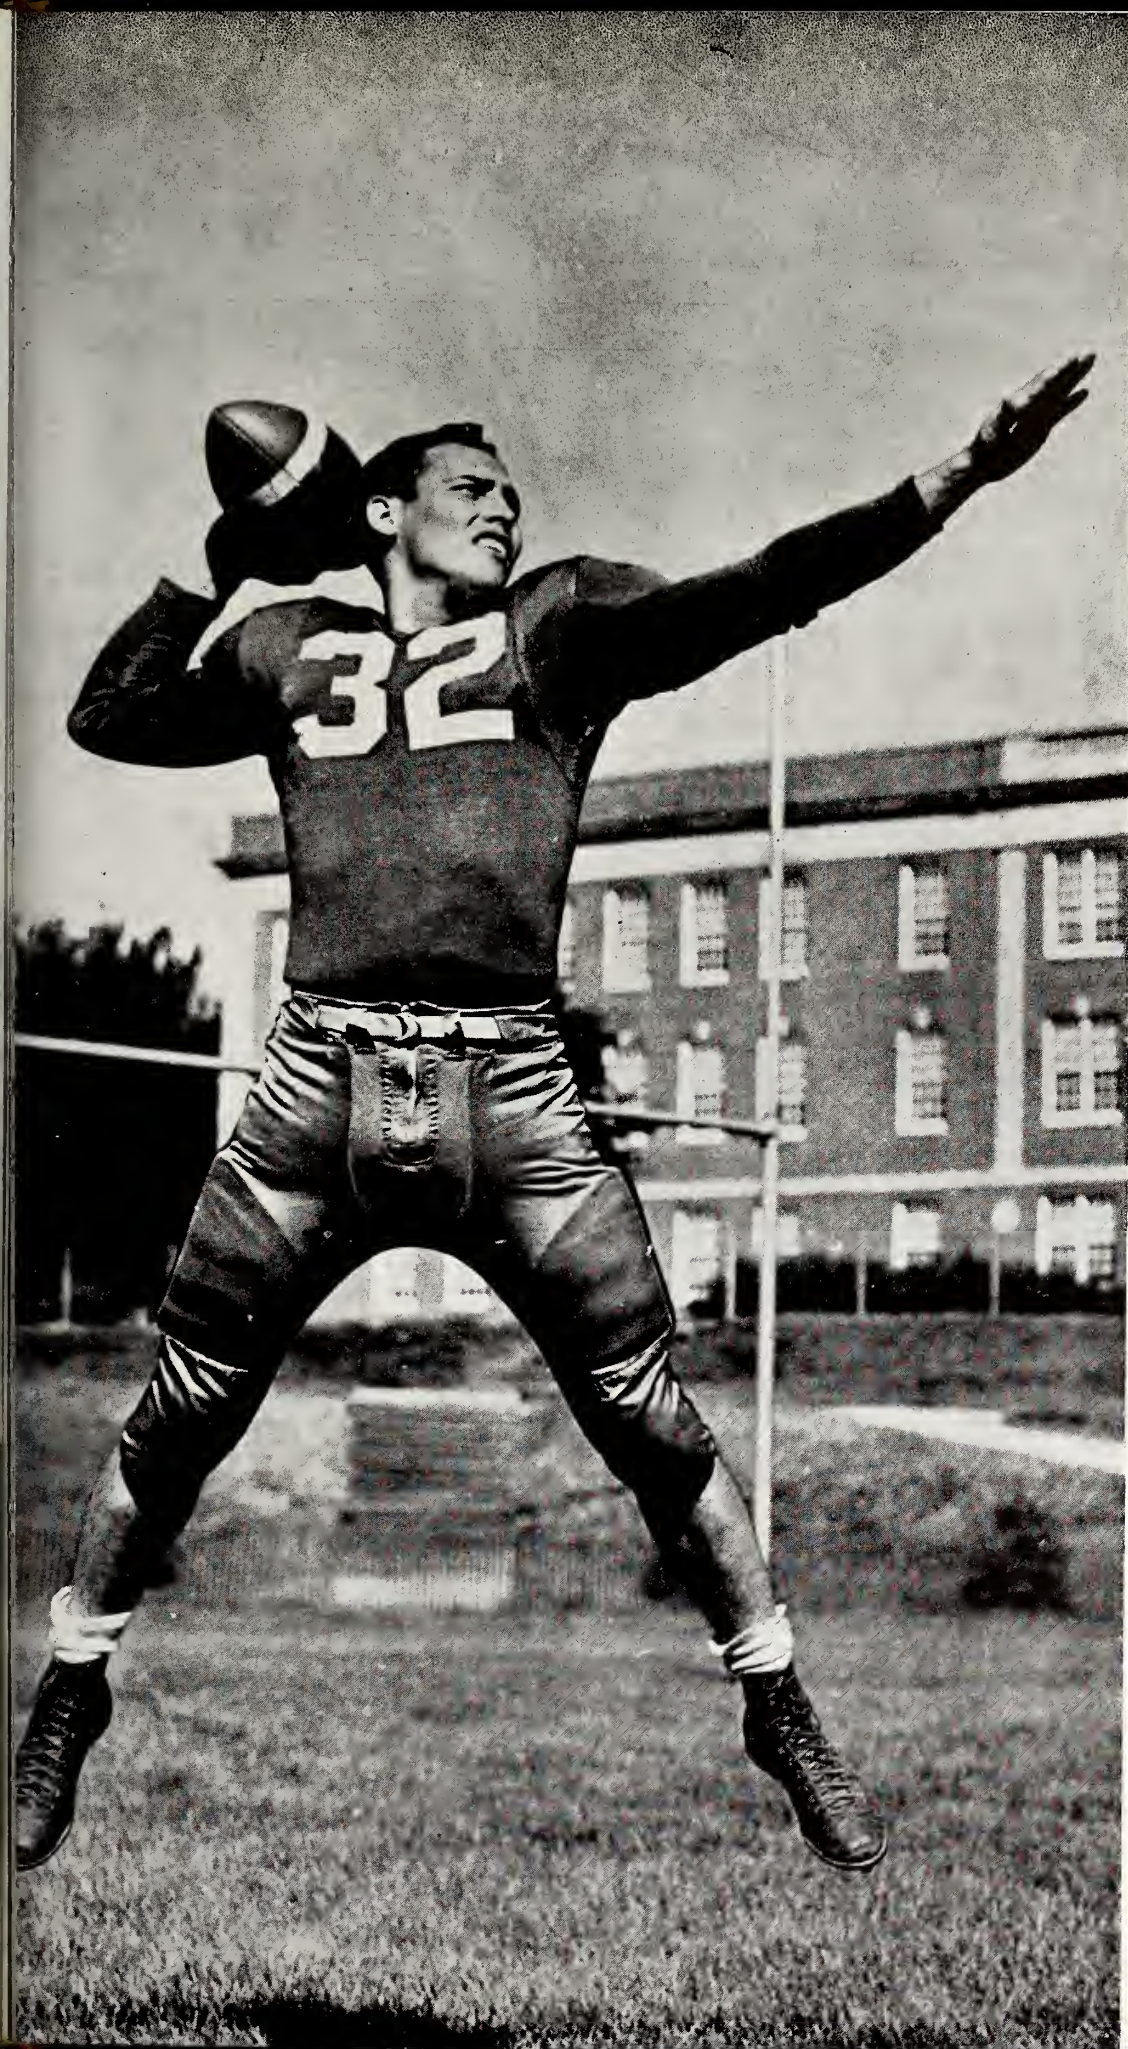

In addition to housing basketball and wrestling, the giant indoor arena can be used for indoor practices in all other sports. Adjoining the east side of the building is the new university Stadium which was opened during the 1949 football season.

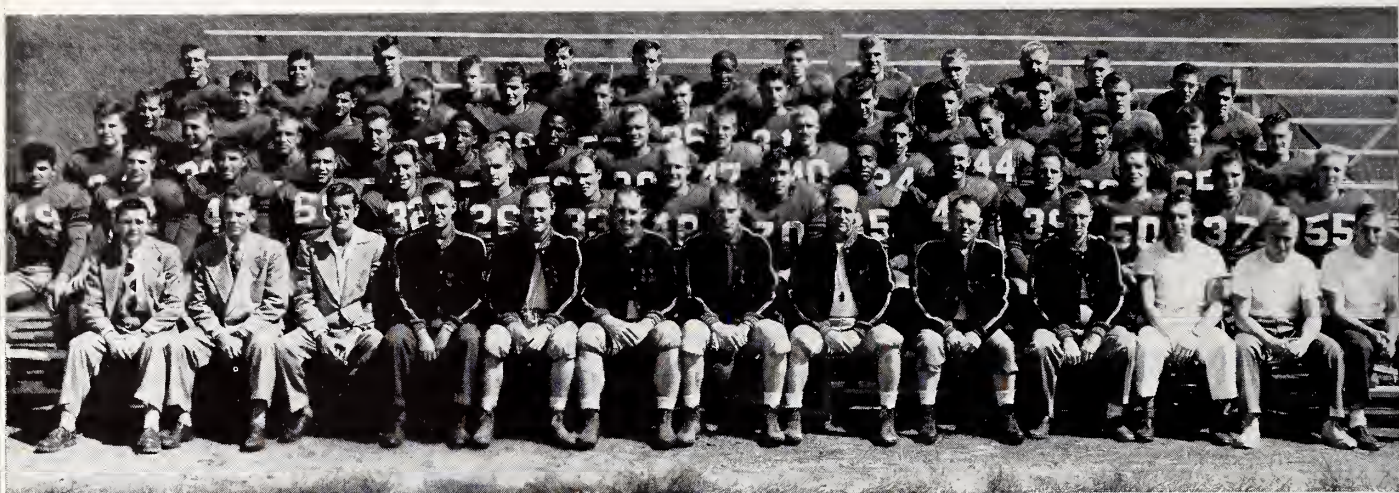

University athletes weren't the only ones to benefit by the completion of the new building. During the second week of March, university officials threw the doors of the Fieldhouse open to the city when they housed the High School Class A District Tournament, formerly cramped into the old City Auditorium.

Working in adequate facilities for the first time, eight men coached the 1949-50 Indian teams.

With one exception the staff remained intact for the year. The new addition involved an exchange of brothers. Omaha released Charley Brock so that he could accept a job as line mentor for the Green Bay Packers and acquired his brother, Tom, to replace him. Tom was a center for two years under Frank Leahy at Notre Dame. After three successful years as athletic director, football, basketball, and baseball coach at Kings College, he accepted the OU position as football line coach and second team basketball coach.

F O O T B A L L

Omaha University football was finally brought home last season but Lloyd Carwell's charges were unable to match stiff competition in front of home crowds.

The Indians used everything they had in mercilessly threshing Colorado Mines, 47-7, to please a large Homecoming house. But Stadium appearances before and after that highlight resulted in three losses.

Two wins and two losses on the road gave the 1949 footballers a season record of three wins and five defeats.

Indians 13 — Wesleyan 6

The Indians journeyed to Lincoln for their opener and nudged Nebraska Wesleyan, 13-6. Joe Arenas took over in the second half to break a 6-6 deadlock. Arenas' passing and running carried to the one. From there Fred Abboud went over.

The first Omaha score was the result of Arenas passes to Bub Gibbons and Dusty Johnson.

Initial Stadium appearance

The Indians picked their initial appearance in the Stadium to play the worst home ball since the post-war revival of the sport. Northern Illinois took advantage of the unalert Omaha defenders to pick up a 27-8 win.

In Topeka, Kan., Omaha was behind to stay fifteen seconds after the kickoff. Washburn went on to take a 13-6 game after Art Fletcher romped 89 yards on a fake criss-cross.

OU migration success

Participants in Omaha's first student migration spent thirty minutes in Crete waiting for action. They got it as Omaha broke a scoreless stalemate and tripped Doane, 20-6.

Arenas passed to Johnson and Archie Arvin for two scores; Abboud scored the other on a short buck.

Homecoming touchdown parade

Oct. 22 was the date of the Indians' Homecoming parade of touchdowns. The Orediggers came to town billed as Rocky Mountain titans and favorites over Omaha.

The sportswriters looked right for five minutes. Then Arenas went over from the two to put the score-keeper to work.

The visitors were passing down the field when Bud Gibbons turned the tide completely in favor of Omaha. He hauled down a stray flat pass on his own 21 and went all the way after Ernie Flecky threw the key block at midfield.

Omaha next contributed to one of the nation's undefeated records. St. Ambrose mauled the Indians, 60-26, in University Stadium for its seventh straight in what was to be a nine-game string.

And he got away. Dick Christie (44) bulls past four Colorado Mines defenders for healthy fourth quarter gain

Little All-American Connie Callahan's running and Bob Hook's kicking gave Morningside a 21-19 victory in Omaha's last game.

Arenas hits passes

For the second straight year the Indians journeyed to Detroit and ran up an impressive score against Wayne only to lose. This time the final count was 38-26 in favor of the Tartars.

Slingshot Joe Arenas, favoring an injured knee, put on his best passing performance of the year, throwing for four touchdowns

With able assistance from little Keith Christie, Arenas racked up 219 yards through the air on 13 completions in 39 attempts.

Abboud led the varsity scorers with 37 points, Arenas had 27, and Johnson 24.

Papoose footballers under the tutorage of Don Pflasterer rolled to another successful abbreviated season with three wins and two losses.

Two straight one-sided victories started the little Indians off on the victory trail. With Fred Passale running rampant the Papooses crushed Luther College, 42-6, and York B, 31-0.

In the Luther game the slight tennis star scampered 65 yards to score in addition to scoring on pass plays from Keith Christie which covered 58 and 49 yards.

Concordia of Seward, junior college power, stopped a courageous Indian bid to snap the win streak, 8-6. Five times the charging Papoose line, led by Pat Wilcox and Jim Buchanan stopped the Concordians within the ten yard stripe.

Nebraska Wesleyan sneaked past the Omaha B team next, though Pfalterer's charges led in the statistic column, 19-12.

With Frank Mancuso racing 58 and 25 yards for scores, the Papooses closed the season over Midland, 21-6.

Football Banquet

Upwards of seven hundred people jammed the auditorium on the night of December 5 for the third annual football banquet. And they witnessed a program that was easily on a par with the previous two.

Guest speaker for the evening was the famous athletic director of Texas University, and one-time University of Nebraska football coach, Dana X. Bible. The banquet reunited Bible with two of the best players that he tutored while at the Lincoln campus: namely, Virg. Yelkin and Lloyd Cardwell.

In his talk, Bible discussed the idea that football is becoming too commercialized.

Other highlights of the banquet were a floorshow featuring acts from the Tom-Tom Revue, and the presentation of the "Most Valuable Player" and the "Honorary Captain of 1949."

Sigma Chi Omicron sorority received the award for high ticket sales during the football season.

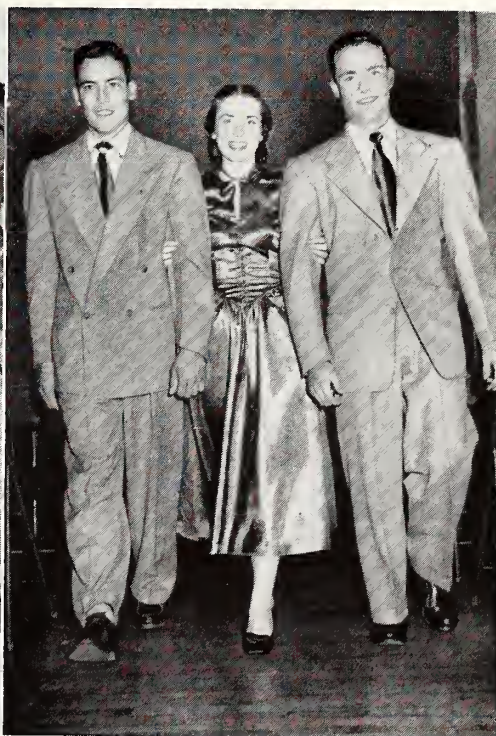

Toastmaster for the evening was Frederick Ware, Managing Editor of the Omaha World Herald. Guests at the banquet included senior lettermen from Omaha and Council Bluffs high schools and their coaches. Also present at the affair was the Omaha World Herald's All-State high school football eleven.

The most memorable event of the basketball season was the opening of the new fieldhouse. The rest of the story was disastrous.

Finally Don Pflasterer's basketballers have adequate practice facilities and a home floor. And the lack of those two things received a major share of the blame for the 19 losses in a 23-game schedule.

The most humiliating blow of the season was Creighton's lack of cooperation of the opening of the Fieldhouse. Duce Belford's boys refused to allow the opening to be completely successful by putting the Indians to rout, 60-46. Earlier in the season the roundballers had given fans some hope for ending the old Bluejay jinx by hanging on till the last gun in dropping 56-51 game at the Hilltop.

Two of the four victories registered during the dismal season were recorded against top-heavy favorites.

After three straight losses the courtmen stopped the best small college quintet in the state. Peru Teachers fell, 59-56, to a red-hot Indian outfit led by Ernie Flecky, Ralph Pettit and Bob Crabtree. Later in the season Peru came back to win, 84-40.

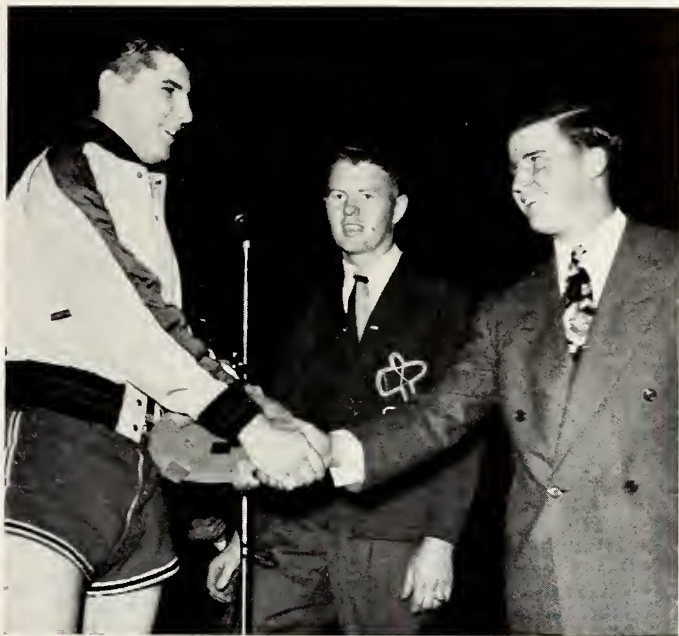

Morningside was the other team to feel the sting of the percentages. Riding an infamous seven game losing streak, the Indians found life in the person of newcomer Bill Travis to grab a 56-54 decision. Travis performed like a machine as he dropped ten straight free throws. In the last 17 seconds Travis dunked three straight to tie, 54-54. The climax of Bill Travis night followed on the throw-in after the final charity toss when Travis fired from back of the keyhole to end the ball game.

Travis wasn't quite through, not yet. Two nights later he scored 15 points to pace the Indians to a 47-38 win over Simpson. Later Simpson came back to win 55-51.

Detroit Tech was the only school on the Omaha schedule that failed to pick up at least one win from the Indians. Guy

Omaha's Flecky is screened from rebound by host o Creighton players.

Oberg, who missed the early part of the season with a bad knee, racked up 18 points to pace the 46-43 victory in Detroit.

Some of the other Indian losses were at the hands of Wayne of Detroit, 50-46; Doane College, 66-50 and 61-54; Sioux Falls College, 56-48 and 50-48; Midland, 54-46 and 40-38; Washburn, 66-43 and 66-50; Nebraska Wesleyan, 61-42 and 54-44; and Cornell College, 53-50. In the Morningside Tournament Omaha finished last in a four-team field. Senior Flecky monopolized individual honors. He received the first annual Warrior trophy and led the scoring parade with 203 points.

Papoose Basketball

Smiddy tries for opening toss-up at Creighton game which marked Fieldhouse opening.

Following the pattern set by their Indian brothers, the Papoose squad failed to show a consistent strong attack. They managed to win but five tilts out of a fourteen game schedule.

The most consistent performer for the Little Indians was Bob Rose, former Boys Town ace. His sharp basket eye plus rebounding ability earned him a promotion to the varsity crew. Rose led Papoose scoring with 124 markers, and was followed by ex-Creighton Prepper, Jim Ryan, who tallied 105 points.

Doane's B squad spoiled the opener by running up a 67-49 margin over the Red and Black seconds. Ralph Pettit and Ryan played good ball in the defeat.

The second start was a victorious one. Pettit tallied 14 points to lead the OU lads to a 41-39 squeak past the Midland B team. The win must have felt good, for in their next game, the Papoose unit took the measure of the Peru State B team, 46-36. Rose and Pettit sparked the win by tallying 36 of the markers.

Concordia Junior College snapped the short-lived win with skein, by hanging a 60-51 loss on the Indians; however, a 44-42 win over Nebraska Wesleyan B ended the 1949 part of the schedule on a happy note. Ryan led the scoring in this narrow win with 12 counters. He was followed by Jim Jackson and Billy Duffack, who each tallied 8.

Failure to stop a tall Creighton lad named Eldon Tuttle, meant a 75-39 loss to the Junior Bluejays. When the Indians began to concentrate on Tuttle in the second half, his mates took up the scoring load. Bob Rose continued to play steady ball and countered 10 points.

In their next start, the Little Indians lost a thriller to the same Midland B team that they had beaten earlier in the season, 49-45. They dropped their third straight tilt to Luther Junior College, 47-42. Jackson paced the scorers with 16 tallies.

Follow! Omaha Papooses Schmidt (4), Ryan, Brock (3) break for basket with three Creighton frosh.

The Red and Black dropped their losing habit momentarily when they slipped past the Naval Reserve crew, 51-50. Jackson rang the bell for 11 points to lead his mates to victory.

With the month of February came a drought of victories for the Papoose squad. They were able to win but one of their five games.

Nebraska Wesleyan B and Milford Trade School marked up two of the losses by beating the Indians by scores of 49-45 and 74-56, respectively.

The OU juniors then drubbed Peru State B, 41-24. However, they ended the season on a losing note when Doane B tripped them, 43-40, and Creighton B repeated an earlier triumph, 45-37. Incidentally, this Creighton game was the first interschool game ever played on the new Fieldhouse floor. Aksel Schmidt led scorers in these two games by totaling 20 points.

Wrestling

Allie Morrison's 1949-50 wrestlers racked up the best won-lost percentage of the winter sports with three out of five starts for a .600 average.

Pisasale swept through all five matches, climaxing the season by trimming Martin Lundwall of Iowa Teachers, 5-0. The National AAU champs won all other matches to notch their twenty-seventh straight dual win, 31-3.

In the same meet Holst's unbeaten string came to a sudden halt at the hands of Floyd Oglesby, 8-0. Holst finished with three wins in four starts. Former Olympic champion Allie Morrison guided his wrestlers to the best record of the fall-winter sports at Omaha U during 1949-50.

The grapplers posted three wins in five duals for a .600 record with Frank Pisasale and Dick Holst racking up impressive individual performances.

South Dakota State, St. Ambrose, and Wartburg fell before the Omahans, while Colorado State, Rocky Mountain Champions, won, 18-6.

The Wartburg victory was especially sweet. The wrestlers become the first varsity team to win an intercollegiate match in the new Field-house.

Maybe practice does make perfect . . . undefeated Fred Pisasale runs through a practice session with Charles Allred.

Omaha hockey players started strong but faded fast. Back row: Wilderman, Platt, Jauss, Wilcox, Anderson, Coach Gibbons; Front row: Zender, Stratton, Carlson, Gibson.

Hockey

Although confined to the doldrums of last place, the Omaha U hockey crew monopolized the individual honors in the amateur hockey league.

High-scoring wing, Tom Jauss, received the highest honor the league has to offer by winning the Fire Parsons Memorial trophy. Jauss topped the scoring list throughout the season with 21 points and was a marked man in every game.

Following Jauss in the scoring column was teammate Charlie Platt. Platt tied with Jim Wharton of Swanson's for second place, both finishing with two points less than Jauss.

The puckchasing Indians looked like the top team in the league in their first few games. But when they suffered a mysterious collapse, and could garner only a tie out of their last six games.

The Indians won their first game by tripping Swansons, 3-1. Jauss led scoring with a pair of goals. The next Swansons game was one of the top games of the season. Goalie John Jones played one of his best games by kicking out 36 Swansons attempts, in leading his teammates to a scoreless tie.

By dropping Russells, the eventual champions, 5-1, the Indians moved into a tie for second place, and when Coliseum fell before the Redmen, 5-3, the OU crew was sole occupant of second place. Platt led scoring in this game by racking up two goals and an even number of assists.

After this game nothing but trouble confronted Coach Freddie Gibbons and his squad as they sank to last place.

SPRING SPORTS

Baseball

The best record in history.

That was the feat accomplished by Virgil Yelkins baseballers last spring with an eight-two performance, including two victories over Creighton. Both losses were avenged by the end of the season.

The peak of the year came in the third game when the Indians smashed the Bluejay myth, 16-3. Don Fitch and Walt Matejka led Omaha hitters in the first college game played in the new Muny Stadium.

Fitch smashed a two-run homer and two singles. Matejka authored a triple and two singles in addition to handling eight fielding chances flawlessly. It was Omaha's first win in the two-year revival of that heated cross-town series.

In the last game of the year Omaha took the anti-climatic game of the Bluejay series, 11-7.

Indians revenge losses

Washburn and Morningside took road games from the Indians before losing in front of Omaha crowds. Washburn made the Warriors' opener a failure at Topeka as it scored four runs on an error of a double play ball to win, 7-4. Reliable Bud Bridenbaugh pitched a brilliant six-hitter in OU's first night game in Omaha to edge the Ichabods, 2-1, in the return game.

Reliever Paul Sorensen was the victim of a Morningside barrage as the Indians dropped a 10-6 decision at Sioux City. He gave up five runs in the eighth as another muffed double-play ball cost the Omahans a victory. Jack Sueme clouted two home runs. Pitcher Lynn Hooton provided the Indians with revenge at Fontenelle Park when he drove in the winning run as Omaha took a 4-3 victory with a three-run eighth inning rally.

Doane, S. D. State fall to Indians

The high-riding Indians took two-games series from Doane College and South Dakota State. Sloppy Doane fielding on the Tiger field ruined steady pitching as Omaha took the first game, 8-1. Doane came to Omaha for the return game following advance publicity of victory intentions at any cost. But the Tigers forgot to bring any pitchers with their press releases and crumpled, 27-5, in the wildest melee of the season.

Don Dutcher, Omaha Benson grad, probably wished he had stayed at home for his college education as he allowed ten Omaha runners to tag home in the first inning of an emergency mound appearance.

Bugs Redden, Bill Spellman and Fred Abboud led the way in an uphill battle at Brookings which resulted in a 6-4 Omaha win over South Dakota State. Back in Omaha little Redden again was the big man with the stick as Omaha notched a 10-4 win over SDS. His three singles paved the way to victory.

One of the reasons for the baseball team's success was a tight infield. Five of the top infielders were Matejka, Redden, Seume, Taylor, Fitch.

Abboud batting tops

After the bats were stored away for the year Abboud was acclaimed campus batting champion with 11 hits in 32 trips for a .341 average. Bunched at .333, Hooton, Fitch, Chad Taylor and Bob Young tied for second place.

George Kostal and Hooton posted perfect pitching records with two wins apiece. Bridenbaugh won three and lost one. Joe Spagnola won his only start, while Sorensen was credited with a single loss.

Omaha 2, Washburn 0. And Pitcher Bud Bridenbaugh was the hero of the game with a six-hitter. Above his teammates crowd around Bud (with jacket, right foreground).

Track

The Omaha U. track squad, 1949 edition, showed a marked improvement over previous years, and, since most of the boys were underclassmen, caused some wishful thinking for the future.

Once again the team was coached by Lloyd Cardwell, with the assistance of Ernie Gorr.

The freshmen opened their season by finishing a poor third in a triangular meet with Washburn and Doane. Sophomore Don Bahnsen's thrilling win in the 880 was the big moment for Indian fans.

The 1949 track team boasted two crack distance men. Left, Don Bahnsen races home with an 880 victory and right, Bernie Anderson romps in with new school two-mile record.

In their next outing the spiked shoe brigade finished second to Simpson College in another triangular. However, they did beat out Central College of Peoria, Illinois. It was in this meet, held at Indianola, Iowa, that Nat Fitz erased the University broad jump record with a leap of 22-ft. 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ -in.

The initial Red and Black victory came when Nebraska Wesleyan visited the Indian campus for a dual meet. The home school was able to win by only 6 $\frac{2}{15}$ points. Lorelle Alford became the second record-breaker of the season by leaping 11-ft. 1-in. in the pole vault. Bernie Anderson was a double-winner, taking both the mile and the two mile runs.

The Indians didn't fare too well in the Peru Invitational meet. They finished third behind Peru and Nebraska Wesleyan in a field of four. The cindermen would probably have beat out Wesleyan for second place had Alford and Lomatch been able to make the trip.

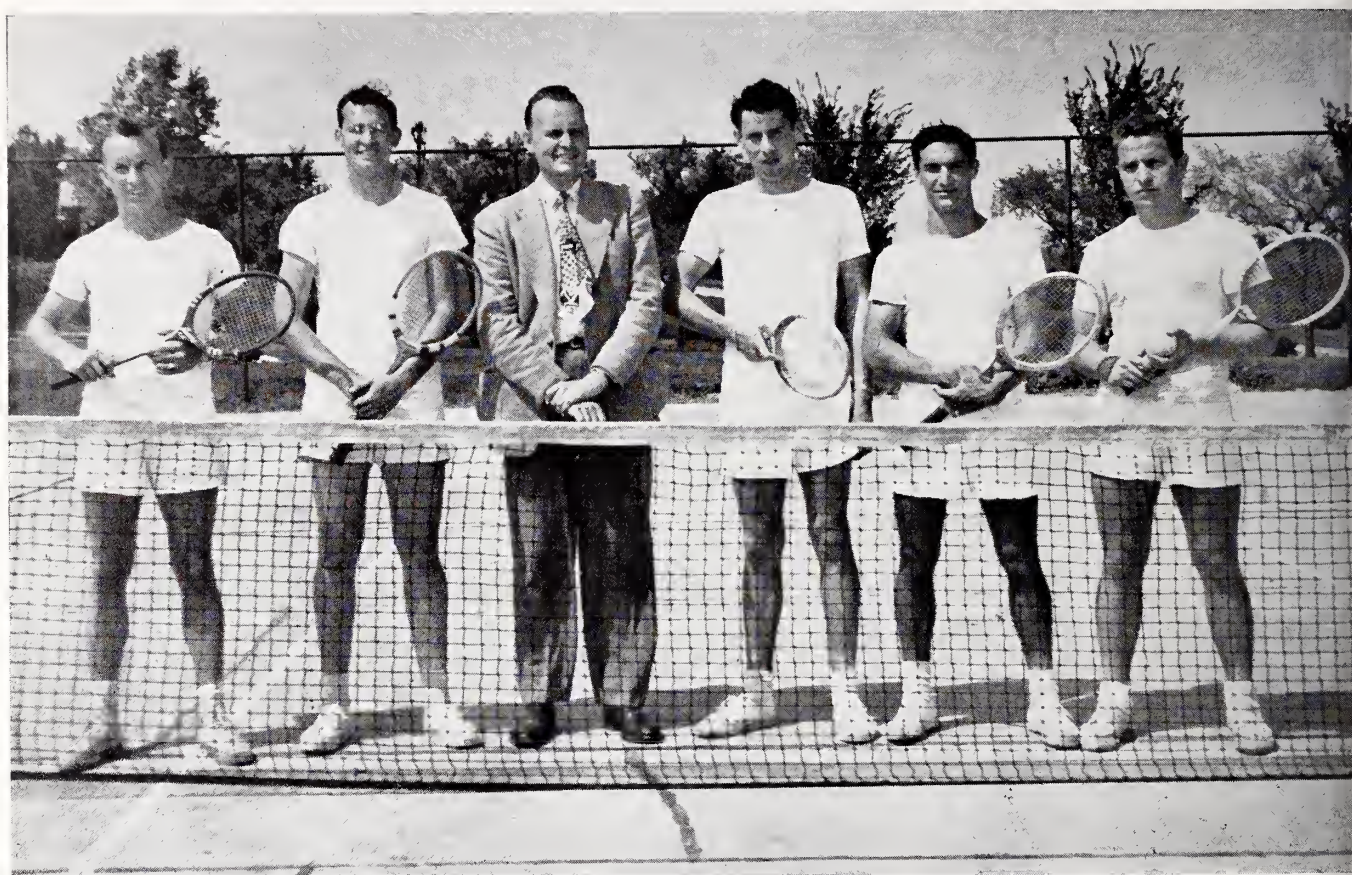

The Indians then did a complete about face and decided to get tough. Peru and Midland came to town for a triangular meet. The Peru lads were favored to win handily, but it was Omaha that did the winning that day. They won five events and scored points in all the others to win over Peru by 12 points.

In the season finale, the Red and Black blasted Morningside, 92-39, in a dual meet. The Indians won 11 of 15 first places and scored sweeps in three of the field events. The top performance was turned in by freshman Bernie Anderson. He won both the mile and two mile runs, and lowered the school two mile record 10 seconds to 10:59.5. Bob Dow was the other double winner for OU, winning both hurdles events.

Don Bahnsen, who went through the season undefeated in the 880, was the leading Indian point-getter. He was followed in the point column by Anderson and Dow. The trackmen amassed a total of 388 17/60 points, with 29 men participating in the scoring barrage.

Tennis

George Pritchard's debut as Omaha University tennis coach was a successful one. His Indian racketeers stormed through an 11 match schedule, losing only two, in the 1949 campaign.

The six boys comprising the nucleus of the squad were Harold Hlad, Fred Pisasale, Bob Wray, Jim Reed, Dave Davis, and Don Easter. Wray had the top individual record, winning ten matches against one loss.

The tennists opened the season by blanking Doane, 7-0. The feature match was Jim Reed's narrow win over Jim Alcock.

The Indians then traveled to Washburn, where they absorbed one of their two defeats, 3-6, to a highly-favored Ichabod crew.

Then came a three-game winning streak. The Red and Black blasted Morningside, 7-0, in a match that was featured by Fred Pisasale's upset win over the Maroon ace, Len Foster. They followed this up by thumping Wichita, 4-2, and Drake, 4-3.

However, a trip to Ames, Iowa, proved to be the Indian's downfall. The potent Big Seven Iowa State netters topped the Redmen, 4-3. This was to be the last setback for the West Dodgers, for they closed the season by slamming past Doane, 6-1; Creighton, 6-1; Midland, 6-0 and 6-1; and Morningside, 6-1.

The Creighton win was especially sweet, for it was the first time since before the war that the Blues have been topped by an Indian crew.

OU golfers moved to 11 straight victories last year, only to miss an all-victorious season by losing to Nebraska B in the season finale. Left to right: Fowler, Hargens, Duncan, Coach Campbell, Stefanski, Berner, Nelson.

Golf

Coach Johnny Campbell's 1949 golf crew conquered eleven straight foes before falling narrowly to Nebraska B's squad in the last match of the season. Included in the victory skein were five shutouts and victories over such outstanding teams as Wichita University, Washburn University, and two victories over Creighton University.

Coach Campbell boasted a well balanced squad. Each of the four regular team members, Chester Stefanski, Captain John Duncan, Bill Berner and Raymond Nelson, captured low scoring honors at least once.

Highlights of the individual matches was Stefanski's tie with Al Littleton, Kansas State Amateur Champion and Wichita team member.

In June, 1949, the squad was rewarded with a trip to Ames, Iowa, and participation in the National Intercollegiate Tournament. Players who represented Omaha University were Stefanski, Duncan, Nelson and Dick Fowler. The latter substituted for Berner.

Other linksmen who helped establish the eleven wins were Bob Russell, Bill Hargens and Carl Brizzi.

Two lettermen, Duncan and Berner, returned to Coach Campbell's crew for the 1950 season.

Cross-Country Run

A new event was added to the intramural program at Omaha University this year, and it shows promise of becoming a traditional affair.

This attraction was a day-before-Thanksgiving cross-country run, with the winner and runner-up receiving turkeys. The course included part of the Elmwood Park golf course and ended with a run through the park proper.

The boys who ran off with the turkeys were Gordon Severa, who came home in front, and Jim Agnew. Charlie Allred followed the leading duo and received a chicken for his efforts.

Basketball

Otoes added new honors to their already gaudy collection by taking the intramural basketball championship. The only team that seriously challenged the Otoes was the Blackhawks. The 'hawks dropped games to the Pawnees and Otoes to fall two games off the pace.

The Otoe-Blackhawk melee was the season's thriller. In one of the first games played on the Fieldhouse maples, the Blackhawks jumped to an early lead and maintained it for a 13-11 half-time margin. But Joe Cupich found his scoring eye in the last half to pace his mates to a 26-26 tie at the end of regulation playing time.

Blackhawks went ahead 31-30 in the overtime, but Cupich sank two free tosses to end the scoring. Cupich wound up with 15 points to place high in the individual scoring race.

Football

Otoes also took the football championship. The boys from the southwest section of town showed a diversified attack as they rambled over all opposition.

In the decisive game the Otoes squeezed past traditionally tough Pawnees, 6-0. The only score came early in the game when Bill Hamlin flipped a pass to Joe Cupich.

Pawnees rallied late in the game. Askel Schmidt's pass to Jim Swanson carried to the one-foot line, but Pawnees lost the ball on downs.

Sioux captured third place in the league, while Theta beat out Alpha Sig for the Interfraternity crown.

Wrestling

Otoes again! This time they reigned supreme in wrestling to add lustre to their 'mural record. They captured three of seven championships and enough second places to easily win the meet.

Wally Baker of Alpha Sig copped the 121 title by pinning Lewis Worm of Blackhaws in 1:38.

Dale Gordon of Pawnees won the 165 match quickly when he threw Bob Miller of Phi Sig. The other fall went to Otoe Larry Johnson over Blackhawk's John Buchanan in the heavyweight match.

Ronnie Pollen of Blackhawk took the 136 pound scrap by trimming Anthony Breci, 2-0. In the top match of the day Paul Baschus, Otoe, won from teammate Paul Greenlee, 7-4, in the 145 pound brawl.

The 155 pound crown went to Cliff Malm, Pawnee, who won from Walt Lukken, Phi Sig, on a forfeit. Otoe Jack Lacy won the 175 pound title from Dick Bolsinger, Phi Sig, on another forfeit. Both Lukken and Bolsinger suffered injured arms.

Ping Pong

Charles Essex wears the Intramural Ping Pong singles crown, but he dropped Jim Procopio in the finals only after a spirited battle.

With both players owning two victories in the five game series, Essex was extended four duces before winning the title, 28-26.

Paul Bashus and Paul Greenlee put on the top match in the 'mural wrestling tourney. Here Greenlee (right) demonstrates a hold to his tournament foe.

Procopio teamed with Jim Tagney to gain revenge in the doubles by tripping Essex and Jerry Malec three straight games.

Sponsored by Pow Wow Inn manager Roger Larson, the ping pongers defeated Nebraska players, 16-9 and 13-12.

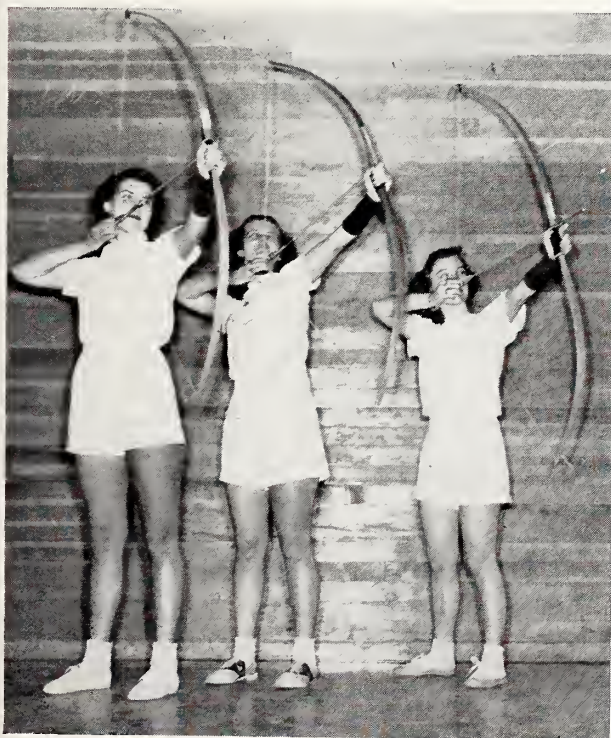

Women's Sports

Women's Physical Education at Omaha University is following the progressive trend which the entire school has set over the past five years. Plans for a Women's Physical Education minor and a possible PE major are in the blueprint for the future.

New acting head of the department is Mrs. Betty J. Staskewitz, who received her MA in Physical Education from the University of Maryland, at College Park. Assisting her is Miss Vera Duerschner, a January graduate of Nebraska University.

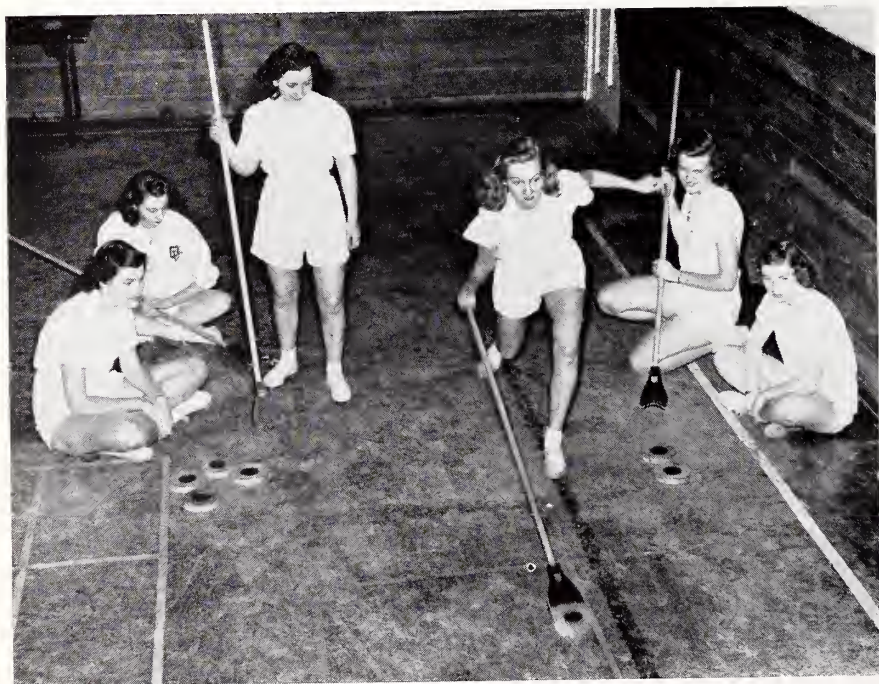

At present the goal of the Women's Physical Education staff is to give as varied and active a program as possible with limited facilities. Equipment is being purchased to further activities in team, individual, dual, and co-recreational sports and intramural activities. Ultimate object of the expansion program is to reach all women on the campus.

This semester intramural and co-recreational programs were initiated. Intramural activities for the second semester included basketball, tennis, golf and softball. Activities during the first semester were field hockey, soccer, badminton, tennis and volleyball. In the co-recreational program, social and square dancing were offered during the noon hour each day.

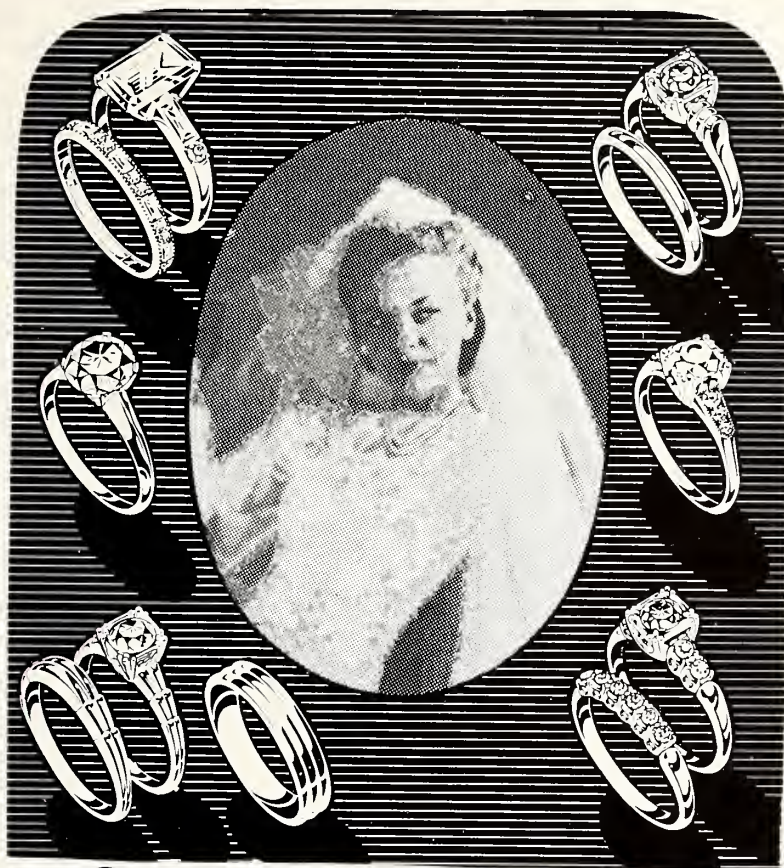

Class PE programs have been expanding also. Now offered are swimming, horseback riding, ice-skating, skiing, tobogganing, golf, bicycling and other recreational sports. Increased enrollment has been noted in the Modern Dance and Rhythmic Activities classes. This spring, the modern dance class was instrumental in bringing Martha Graham's dancers to OU for a performance.

For the first time OU was represented by a sanctioned bowling league. Six teams took part in the series at the Forty-Bowl alleys. Competing teams were the five sororities, Chi O, Alpha Xi, Sig Chi, Gamma, Kappa, and the Independents.

Plans are under way to integrate several courses offered in the men's PE department with those in the women's. This arrangement will allow women to enroll in established courses which are now offered by the faculty in the men's PE Department.

SIXTY YEARS OF SERVICE

For three score years the Woodmen of the World has been of inestimable, lifelong service to scores of thousands of men and boys.

In Boys of Woodcraft, junior Woodmen have learned teamwork and developed qualities for leadership while building funds for their education or other useful purposes with safe, sound Woodmen life insurance protection.

Adult Woodmen have appreciated Woodcraft's "plus benefits" . . . the fraternal, social and civic activities they enjoy along with financial security provided by Woodmen protection.
